SANCTUARY

Hongkong, as a haven of refuge for the distressed in these troubled times, is, though faced with a serious outbreak of cholera, happy to be of service to those who have been forced out of their homes in consequence of the bringing of Shanghai into the Sino-Japanese war zone. Here in the security of this British Colony, we can have very little conception of the strain and suffering to which these Shanghai people now coming here by the thousands have been subjected. One arrival summed up the position by saying that their experiences can only be compared to those obtaining in the front-line during the Great War. Certain it is that those who have managed to seek sanctuary here will never forget what they have undergone. Their appreciation of the peace and quietude which they can now enjoy will be thrown into relief by the terrors from which they are now free. There are others left behind for whom keen concern will naturally be felt; Hongkong joins with those whose relatives are still in the danger-zone in the prayer that they may have a happy issue out of all their troubles. The Colony is glad to be able to do what it can not only for the Britons who have come here, but also for those of all nationalities. The influx of such a huge number of people naturally creates a wholly abnormal situation, one such as the Colony has never had to face before. There is, we are glad to feel, evidence of a general spirit of hearty co-operation in the heavy task which has been thrown on the community and its essential services. All are anxious to unite in the work of mercy which the whole Colony has been called up to assume. At the beginning, there may be defects in the organisation which has been hurriedly devised to cope with the situation, but these will doubtless be remedied as experience is gained, and we may rest assured that those who have come into our midst will be tolerant of any short-comings that may reveal themselves during the first few weeks of their stay. ## OPIUM EXPORT PROSECUTION

BOTH ACCUSED MEN DISCHARGED

After a number of hearings, the case against Charles David Evans, aged 37, carpenter of the Prince Line Japanese Prince, and Wong Yau, aged 61, boarding-house runner, both charged with doing an act preparatory to the exportation of opium, and possession of 1,000 taels of prepared opium on board the Japanese Prince on June 16, was concluded at the Central Magistracy this morning, when Mr. K. Keen delivered judgment and dismissed the case against both men.

Evans was represented by Mr. W. A. Mackinlay, of Deacons, and Wong was represented by Mr. J. T. Prior. The prosecution was in the hands of Mr. W. M. Thomson, Assistant Superintendent of Imports and Exports.

It had been alleged by the prosecution that defendants were members of an opium ring, which originated in New York, and on June 16, Evans was alleged to have gone to the New Asia Hotel in Hongkong, and had an interview with Wong, after which he returned to the ship, where the opium had been taken and stored in his cabin.

Evans' defence was a complete denial of the facts as presented by the prosecution, and his story was that on the night in question, he attended a cinema performance in Kowloon, and returned to the ship well before the opium had been brought on board. He also brought witnesses to prove his movements. The defence had also alleged that Yasin bin Dallah, the ship's boat-skipper, who was one of the principal witnesses for the prosecution, was an accomplice, whose evidence could not be accepted uncorroborated, and that other witnesses had been equally biased against defendants.

Delivering judgment, His Worship said: "Evans has not, in my opinion, cleared himself from suspicion in this matter, but, on the other hand, I am convinced that Yasin bin Dallah was an accomplice and that his evidence cannot be accepted at its face value. Moreover, the evidence of Yasin bin Dallah shows inconsistency as to details. The remaining evidence shows a complete discrepancy between the story told by the prosecution and the elaborate story put up by the defence. It is beyond my power to say which side is lying and Evans must accordingly be discharged."

Wong was also automatically discharged, as his case hinged on that of Evans.

H.K. ANTI-GAS LECTURES

TO BE STARTED NEXT WEEK

A series of five concise lectures on anti-gas precautions is to be given at the St. John Ambulance Brigade Headquarters, Tai Hang Road, on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings at 7.30 p.m., commencing next Wednesday, August 25, for volunteers proceeding North. As 100 respirators only are available, the class is limited to 100 members only. Those intending to attend should send in their names immediately. The lectures will be given by Corps Supl. Chak Tai-kwong. A full course for officers and members of Ambulance and Nursing Divisions will be arranged early next month. Successful candidates after examination will be awarded A.R.P. Certificates, which are becoming very popular with members at home.

PORTUGAL AND CZECHO-SLOVAKIA

BREACH DICTATED BY BERLIN?

Moscow, Aug. 20. The Izvestia, commenting on Portugal's severing of relations with Czechoslovakia, says: "Obviously the decision was made, not at Lisbon, but in Berlin and Rome. There is no doubt that this is not a Portuguese but a German attack on Czechoslovakia. German Fascists are preparing ideological grounds for aggression against Czechoslovakia."—United Press.

mediate concern to residents of the Colony is the question of possible profiteering in rents and the necessities of life. In such times, there are always to be found those who have no compunctions about profiting from others' misfortunes. The Government should keep a strict watch on the situation in this respect, and, should the occasion arise, it is to be hoped that prompt and stringent measures will be taken to deal with the position. Meantime, we can only reiterate that Hongkong is proud to be of service to those who have suffered much in dread experiences from which this Colony has so far been happily free.

midst of heavy anti-aircraft from Japanese warships.

Several Chinese planes began to dive towards the Idzumo, but they pulled out when high up and headed over the Settlement which was showered with shrapnel from Japanese naval anti-aircraft. At the same time four of the Chinese planes returned to Chupel.—United Press.

CHINESE JUNK SUNK

JAPANESE MOVE HEADQUARTERS

Shanghai, Aug. 21. Following the occupation of the Wayside Wharf by the Chinese on the night of August 19 and the resultant division of the Japanese lines, Chinese pressure on the east has occasioned the removal of the Japanese Headquarters in the Yangtzeopoo area to the lower wharf of the China Merchant Steam Navigation Company further east, according to information here.—Central News.

FOREIGN FORCES IN DANGER

Shanghai, Aug. 21 (11.55 a.m.). Danger to foreign forces in Shanghai from shell-fire continues. Last night, after the incident on the U.S.S. Augusta, a Russian representative, from a roof-top, saw one shell fall on the waterfront, at Pootung within a couple of hundred yards of the Augusta and other foreign warships.

British soldier named O'Brien, belonging to the 2nd Battalion of the Loyal Regiment, was slightly wounded in the head with shrapnel while guarding a Japanese mill in the western defence sector.—Reuter.

INTERIOR CITIES RAIDED

Shanghai, Aug. 21. Two Japanese planes were shot down in the southern Nantao area yesterday, according to Chinese military reports. Information reaching here to-day indicates that a lone Japanese bomber succeeded in dropping three bombs on the city of Kiangning, gateway to the mountain resort of Kuling, yesterday morning. The raider approached the city from the southeast, dropped its load of deadly missiles, and ascended beyond the range of anti-aircraft guns before it could be brought down. Kiangning on the Yangtze River, 30 miles north of Wushih, reported that 11 Japanese bombers flew over the city yesterday and dropped a number of bombs. Some of the explosives were said to be poison gas bombs.—Central News.

MORE ACTIVITY

Shanghai, Aug. 21. Four Japanese warships off Eastern Hongkong opened a heavy bombardment of Pootung early this morning. A Chinese plane bombed the China Merchants' lower wharf at Yangtzeopoo shortly afterwards. This wharf was occupied by the Japanese on Thursday.

Observers report that Japanese bombers dropped six or seven bombs on Kiangning Dock while a lone Chinese anti-aircraft gun replied ineffectively.

NO BRITISH CASUALTIES

Shanghai, Aug. 21. A persistent rumour that three British regular soldiers had been injured last night was scotched by the British military authorities in a statement to United Press to-day.

The statement said that there were no British military casualties during the night. The authorities were also confident that no British civilians had been hurt, although shrapnel frequently showered many sections of the Settlement and French Concession last night.—United Press.

imbedded in a warehouse on the French Bund, and caused only slight damage.

Later revised reports from observers said that one Chinese bomb fell at Pootung Point and one at Whangpoo near the Japanese Consulate, which remained undamaged. Five bombs fell in the vicinity of Paoshung near the Japanese Naval landing party barracks.—United Press.

PANIC ON BUND

Shanghai, Aug. 20. The appearance of Chinese planes over the Settlement to-day caused a panic amongst the populace of the central district. Hundreds of people sprinted down Nanking Road away from the Bund, fearing that bombs would fall in the vicinity, although they actually fell across the creek.

The planes followed a westward flight and three bombers flew across the Bund, after which there was heavy fire from Chinese artillery on the Pootung side, accompanied by sudden spurring of flames.

Immediately prior to the Chinese plane bombardment, the U.S.S. Augusta sounded a blast clearing the sailors from the forward deck.

Meanwhile, marines and Volunteers have erected barricades on the Bund.

The Chinese land forces have again penetrated the Kungling Road district.

Large crowds of people from fires in the East Seward Road district lashed over the sea, frequently obscuring the Chinese planes.—United Press.

BRITISH PROTESTS

London, Aug. 20. To-day's reports from Shanghai indicate widespread destruction of property in the area north of the Soochow Creek by bombardment and fire.

The Chinese and Japanese Governments are being informed that the British Government must reserve all their rights as regards holding those Governments responsible for damage or loss to either life or property that may be incurred by British subjects as a result of the action of the Chinese and Japanese forces. A protest is also being made to the Japanese Government regarding British properties in the International Settlement which have been occupied by Japanese forces, and the Japanese Government is being informed that, even if the occupation can be justified, compensation for such occupation will be payable, in addition to compensation which may result from any loss or damage and that claims will therefore be presented in due course.—British Wireless.

The Garrison Headquarters also announces that the Chinese have occupied the bridge over Soochow Creek to the east of Seward Road.—United Press.

ATTACKS REPULSED

Shanghai, Aug. 21. A Japanese Naval Attaché has announced that the Japanese repulsed two Chinese attempts to rush the Japanese lines at Eight Character Bridge and the North Szechuen Road sector opposite the Ili Theatre.

Japanese armoured cars during the night pushed back Chinese tanks and the Yangtzeopoo area soldiers to enter the Chinese anti-aircraft guns since dawn have been attempting to bomb Hongkong. The Attaché claimed that two of these Chinese combaters were brought down at Chienju.—United Press.

FOUR OTHERS DOWN

Shanghai, Aug. 21. A Japanese spokesman said this morning that an Idzumo seaplane had shot down another of the four of the combaters which attacked the ship, two of the planes thus being sent to the ground.

He also stated that in the course of a second air raid this morning, the Chinese planes had wrecked the Toyoko Hotel in Boone Road and had injured 15 Japanese civilians.—United Press.

CHINESE PLAINCLOTHES USING FIREARMS

Shanghai, Aug. 21. Japanese naval circles complain that Chinese plainclothesmen were firing from the Nanyang Tobacco Company prior to evacuating. It is said that multi-clad Chinese soldiers filtered into the area and opened fire on Japanese troops from the windows. The Japanese are investigating the charge that Chinese plainclothesmen retained contact with the Chinese Command through light signals on top of the New Asia Hotel near the Post Office.—United Press.

CHINESE GUNS ARE SILENCED

Shanghai, Aug. 21. A Japanese Naval Attaché has announced that Japanese heavy artillery silenced Chinese batteries in the vicinity of Chienju which had bombarded Hongkong intermittently during the night.—United Press.

The moonlight launch picnic arranged by St. Andrew's Club for tonight is cancelled.

AIR ATTACK DURING COURT INQUIRY

Shanghai, Aug. 21. While the Court of Inquiry on the Augusta was deliberating this morning, the Idzumo, which is a quarter of a mile downstream off the Japanese Consulate, opened a furious anti-aircraft fire against Chinese planes, whose number is not yet ascertainable. The Idzumo's shells appeared to be going at a high angle between Broadway Mansions and the British Consulate, the latter being south of Soochow Creek.—United Press.

NOT JAPANESE

Shanghai, Aug. 21. A Japanese spokesman states that the Augusta disaster is regrettable, but denied that it could have been caused by a Japanese shell. He expressed the opinion that the missile was from a Chinese mortar near the North Station.

The spokesman added that the anti-aircraft guns of Japanese warships were obviously silent at the time, because Japanese planes were over the Yangtzeopoo area.—United Press.

INTENSIVE BOMBING CONTINUES

FIRES RAGING IN SEVERAL AREAS

Air Battle Over Kiangwan

FOREIGN POLICE SHOT AT BY CHINESE

ANOTHER day's warfare has begun in Shanghai, Japanese warships being early active in bombing operations, to which Chinese artillery are vigorously replying. Chinese entrenched south-east of Shanghai have also been subjected to bombing by Japanese planes.

In the Kiangwan district, Chinese and Japanese planes met in the air, and one machine, whether Chinese or Japanese is not known, has been brought down.

In consequence of the Chinese bombing of Japanese positions, huge fires have broken out in the Yangtsepo and Hongkew districts. The outbreak is said to be on an even larger scale than that which practically destroyed Chapei in 1932.

YESTERDAY there was much aerial activity at various points, and one incident occurred when a foreign police party was fired upon from Chinese positions when returning from taking food to nuns besieged in the Sacred Heart Convent.

Shanghai, Aug. 21 (3 a.m.). Shanghai experienced the biggest fire in the history of the city last night when the Yangtsepo and Hongkew districts, now under Japanese military occupation, were turned into a veritable inferno.

The fire started late in the evening when Chinese planes rained bombs after bomb on the Japanese positions at Yuanfang Road.

At the same time another squadron of Chinese bombers released their deadly missiles on Woonung Road and the western section of Broadway. The flames lit up the whole city and were visible for miles around.

Another bomb hit and set fire to the Japanese-owned Jih Hwa Cotton Mill on the Pootung side of the river.

The conflagration last night far exceeds the big fire which destroyed Chapei in 1932.

Chinese military authorities believe that last night's fire will be able to assist them to dislodge the Japanese who have been stubbornly holding that area.—Central News.

BOMBING RE-STARTS

Shanghai, Aug. 21 (9 a.m.). The bombing of Pootung by Japanese planes heralded another day's warfare. Japanese warships along the river from Shanghai to Woonung joined in the attack, to which Chinese artillery replied.

The Japanese initiated the day's aerial activity by bombing the Chinese positions south-east of Shanghai. Soon afterwards, two Chinese planes flew over the city, drawing severe anti-aircraft fire from the Japanese, which lasted three minutes. Shells burst over the central district. Chinese planes dropped no bombs.

Subsequently, Chinese and Japanese planes met in the air over the Kiangwan district, and one plane, the identity of which is unknown, was shot down, the pilot bailing out in his parachute.—Reuter.

BOMBS SHAKE CITY

Shanghai, Aug. 20. Chinese planes have been dropping bombs at intervals of a few minutes and shaking the buildings in the central district of Shanghai. The first reports of observers indicated that the bombs were falling in the vicinity of Woonung Road.

A fire is raging on the Pootung side of the Whangpoo, believed to be the Japanese-owned Nikka cotton mill.

Chinese bombers disappeared over Chapei later to-day.

FOREIGN POLICE FIRED UPON

A foreign police party, returning from the Convent of the Sacred Heart at Yangtsepo, where they brought food for the trapped nuns, reported severe fighting in the Ward Road district where the Chinese position behind the gaolers' quarters fired on the Police car.

Heavy Japanese bombing of Pootung is continuing.

NANKING ROAD AFTER LAST WEEK'S TRAGIC BOMBING

ANXIETY FOR SIR WM. HORNELL

The many friends of Sir William Hornell, Vice-Chancellor of the Hongkong University, who narrowly escaped drowning at Repulse Bay yesterday, will regret to learn that his condition gives cause for some anxiety. Professor Gerrard issued the following bulletin this morning: "Sir William Hornell passed a restless night. This morning his condition shows slight improvement, but is still grave."

JAPANESE SAID HARD PRESSED

Both Flanks Now Vulnerable

London, Aug. 20. The Chinese Embassy here has issued a statement in the following terms:

"The Japanese forces have been driven into the International Settlement to the north of the Soochow Creek. The Japanese lines are now pressed into a long arc-shape measuring approximately 8,000 metres long and 2,500 to 1,000 metres deep. They are therefore becoming easily vulnerable on both flanks."

"Thus compressed, the Japanese guns have been rendered ineffective, and fighting is now mostly hand-to-hand. A renewed Japanese attempt to land on the Pootung side of the river was repulsed."

"In the Charhar sector in North China, the Chinese have gained notable victories. They have recovered Shanghai, Changchun and other places over an extensive area over south-west China which the Japanese had occupied."

The statement adds that the Chinese War Ministry has announced that from August 14 to 16 over thirty Japanese planes were brought down. It is also revealed in official reports that at the battle at Nankow on August 14, a whole regiment under Colonel Lo Chu-fang fought to the last man in defence of the Chinese position and was almost completely annihilated before reinforcements arrived.—Reuter.

NO PASSPORTS FOR CHINA

U.S. Department's Announcement

Washington, Aug. 20. Persons applying to the State Department for passports to China are being told that these won't be issued except in extraordinary cases.

It is understood that Americans wishing to travel to China on urgent business will be accorded passport facilities, but in no case would passports be issued to women and children.—Reuter.

WOMAN'S LOSS

Leung Yiu-lai, of Prince Edward Road, reported to the police yesterday that while travelling between Temple Street and her house on a taxi she either lost or had stolen from her, a handbag containing gold articles to the total value of $602.

DEMON RAYS SEEN IN STANLEY BAY

Two demon rays were seen yesterday morning swimming just off St. Stephen's College bathing pier in Stanley Bay.

Students and visitors to the college were highly excited when they saw the demon rays frisking on the water's surface. The larger fish was big enough to occupy a quarter the size of an ordinary room while the smaller one was about the size of a table. The larger one made three graceful somersaults turning on its back evidently catching small fish.

Expert Coming To Aid Anti-Cholera Measures

Geneva, Aug. 20.

The Singapore office of the League of Nations organisation for Hygiene has telegraphed the Secretariat that Doctor Park, Director of the Office, is proceeding to Hongkong to confer with the authorities in regard to measures to avoid the spreading of the cholera epidemic. Dr. Park will be accompanied by Dr. Brocie, the League sanitary expert for China.—Reuter.

China Objects To Berlin's Press Reports

Berlin, Aug. 20. It is reported that the Chinese Legation complained to the Foreign office to-day of what they termed the lack of objectivity of the German press reports on the Chinese-Japanese situation. The Legation claimed that they were uninformed as to whether Dr. H. H. Kung, China's Minister of Finance, would return, but suggested that he would probably come to Paris, but did not say whether it would be connected with the negotiations with Skoda Works or the Scheider Creuzer.—United Press.

New Peril For Santander

Water Supply May Be Cut Off

La Roche, Aug. 20. General Franco's forces, through rain and fog, have approached Arleja reservoirs, twenty-one miles south-west of Santander and are planning to cut off the city's sole source of drinking water.

As a consequence, 160,000 people, mostly women and children, face the prospect of thirst and epidemics. The troops are expected to reach the reservoirs within a few hours, and will then proceed to Puente Viesgo and wreck the power plants.—United Press.

ROOSEVELT ON THE AUGUSTA INCIDENT

NEUTRALITY ACT NOT TO BE INVOKED

CALM ATTITUDE ADOPTED

ALTHOUGH President Roosevelt and his Cabinet are highly concerned over the U.S.S. Augusta incident at Shanghai when a seaman on board was killed yesterday as a result of a shell hitting the American warship, reports from Washington indicate that the United States will not as yet invoke the Neutrality Act. Rather has President Roosevelt signified his desire that the American authorities on the spot should investigate the affair.

Washington reports show, however, that while there are American nationals to protect in Shanghai, the Augusta will not move from her position in the Whangpoo.

WINS THREE GAMES

AMERICAN SUCCESSES

WIGHTMAN CUP CONTEST

Forest Hills, Aug. 20. The United States scored victories in the opening matches of the Wightman Cup lawn tennis contest against the British players here to-day, Miss Alice Marble and Miss Helen Jacobs both winning, in the singles while the Americans took the doubles match.

Miss Alice Marble had a hard fought match against Miss Mary Hardwick and won in three sets after dropping the first. The scores were 4-6, 6-2, 6-4.

Miss Hardwick was three games to four down in the first set and pulled up with brilliant back hand drives. Thereafter the American slowed up her game and the English girl took the set at 6-4.

In the second set Miss Hardwick was over driving and served five double faults.

Miss Katherine Stammers by 6-1, 4-6, 6-4. Miss Jacobs was very steady from the baseline while in the first set Miss Stammers played some spectacular shots but was inaccurate. She lost the first two games in the second set but rallied with cross court drives down the side lines and eventually won the set after ten games.

In the third set Miss Jacobs ran away with a 4/1 lead. Miss Stammers stormed the net and volleyed and smashed with Miss Jacobs sticking to the baseline. She pulled up to 4/6 but failed to prevent the American from winning 6-4.

In the doubles match Mrs. Sarah Palfray Fabyan and Miss Alice Marble out-generalled Miss Mary Dearman and Miss Joan Ingram to win by 6-3, 6-2.

American matches on the first day and it would seem that they will accomplish the feat of winning the Davis and Wightman Cups in the same year.—Reuter.

BIG AIR RACE

ONLY ONE BRITISH ENTRY

London, Aug. 20. The machine used by Major Campbell Black in the race to Australia is the only British entry in an air race from Marseilles to Damascus and back to Paris. Italy is making a strong bid with eight entries of powerful machines.—Reuter.

STEEL PRICES TOO HIGH

London, Aug. 20. Lord Nuffield has attacked the steel industry in Britain, stating that if producers do not reduce their prices, Britain will be forced to buy abroad at one-third of the home price.—Reuter Bulletin.

Washington, Aug. 20. Officials of the Navy Department to-day stated that they expect the Commander of the United States Asiatic fleet to make a sharp protest both to China and Japan concerning the explosion of an anti-aircraft shell aboard the U.S.S. Augusta.

News of the incident spread quickly through the capital and caused several members of Congress to comment that the time has come for President Roosevelt to invoke the Neutrality Act.

ROOSEVELT'S STATEMENT

Asked to comment on the incident, President Roosevelt said that whatever action was deemed advisable in connection with the Augusta would be determined by the authorities on the spot.

When asked whether retaliation was contemplated, the President replied that such incidents are almost bound to happen in such a situation. President Roosevelt reiterated that the invocation of the Neutrality Act would await the official severance of diplomatic relations between China and Japan.

OPPOSES INVOCATION OF NEUTRALITY ACT

The view that the Neutrality Act should be invoked is not shared by Mr. McReynolds, Chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee, who said that the Augusta incident was unfortunate but he believed President Roosevelt was right in not yet invoking the Act. He added that the matter will be taken up by the proper authorities, but he did not doubt it would be found that the bombing was unintentional.

"It is just one of those incidents which are bound to happen when you are around when a war is going on," he added.

Mr. McReynolds said that the Neutrality Act should not be made effective until the United States had determined the real facts, and he concluded with the observation "We have hitherto had trouble between Japan and China which at the time looked very serious, but was soon over."

Speaking at a Press Conference to-day, Mr. Cordell Hull, U.S. Secretary of State, described the shelling of the Augusta as "an unfortunate incident," and added that the United States was continuing the attitude that Americans in Shanghai must be protected while they remain there, but that they were being urged to evacuate the city "to the fullest possible extent."—Reuter.

AUGUSTA TO REMAIN

Washington, Aug. 20. Despite the reiterations of Senators Clark and Nye, demanding the invocation of neutrality and recalling all troops and civilians, Senator Pittman said that the incident was no reason to recall the warship for "as long as American citizens in China are in danger, it is the duty of the Navy to remove them to safety, regardless of the risk involved."

Senator Borah termed it as unfortunate and was at loss to know what the Government could do, while Mr. Cordell Hull merely echoed President Roosevelt.—United Press.

CABINET DISCUSSION

Washington, Aug. 20. The Sino-Japanese situation was discussed at length when President Roosevelt's weekly Cabinet meeting was held to-day.

It was not revealed whether the question of any official action from Washington was discussed, but one member of the Cabinet said there had been no decision as yet to invoke the Neutrality Act.

According to another member, the Cabinet was informed that it was a Japanese shell which struck the Augusta. The spokesman, however, refused to divulge the source of the information, but said that the incident had been discussed by the Cabinet and that the United States would not invoke the Neutrality Act.—Reuter.

YANKEES WIN NARROWLY

Tie With Athletics Extended
Ten Innings
Played

New York, Aug. 20. The New York Yankees, leaders of the American Baseball League, only just managed to win their tie against the Philadelphia Athletics, the match going to ten innings before reaching a decision.

The Yankees scored eight runs from eleven hits to beat the Athletics who converted 12 hits into but seven runs. Two fielders' errors were the deciding factors. Bill Dickey homered for the winners and Nelson reaped for the Philadelphia outfit.

Detroit Tigers slipped further back by a defeat against the St. Louis Red Sox. The Tigers chalked up six runs from 12 hits and one error with Fox and Greenberg each hitting for the plate. The Red Sox replied with a total of 11 runs from 10 hits and three errors. Cliff and Bell homered.

In the National League, a close match was seen between Cleveland Indians and Chicago White Sox, the former winning by seven runs to six. The Indians registered 14 hits, including a home run by Averill while the White Sox had ten hits, Walker and Radcliff hitting for the circuit. One fielder's error was committed by the White Sox team.

Boston Braves took their match from Brooklyn Dodgers by 6-5 scoring nine hits against their opponents. 12 English homered for the winners who conceded one error to the Dodgers.

The Giants with thirteen runs from 21 hits, including a homer by Ott trounced the Philadelphia Phillies who replied with six runs from 13 hits. They gave away two errors. Camilli homered.

Although Mays and Medwick scored the only home runs of the match for the St. Louis Cardinals, the side failed to win against the Pittsburgh Pirates who scored seven runs after registering 15 hits. The Cardinals only had four batters cross the plate. These were scored from six hits. Both sides committed one error in the field.—Reuter.

Naked And Undisguised Brutality

JAPAN ACCUSED
BY U.S. PRESS

Washington, Aug. 20. Win or lose, Japan will never be able to justify this unspeakable outrage, comments the Washington Morning Post in an editorial on the Shanghai events.

"Often in history," continues the comment, "great nations have risked moral condemnation and jeopardized their future in order to satisfy their lust for conquest, but never has such an action been taken more blatantly and with less regard for the consequences to civilization as a whole than in the case of the present Japanese attack on Shanghai."

"All the power of her efficient military machine won't be strong enough to offset the enduring hostility which Japan is now creating by this display of naked, undisguised brutality," concludes the comment.—Reuter.

CAPSIZED IN SQUALL

Suffering from the effects of immersion a man named So Kwan, aged 50, was admitted to the Kowloon Hospital yesterday. So told the police that his boat was off Basalt Island when it was capsized by a squall. He was rescued and taken to Hongkong by Fung Man-fat a fook on board fishing junk No. 2928 H.W. Three other men, the crew of the capsized boat, are missing and it is believed they have been drowned.

Homeless Settling Down At Happy Valley

THIS MORNING'S SCENES DESCRIBED

A visit to Happy Valley Race course, where 300 Shanghai people from the P. and O. liner Rajputana stayed the night, revealed a scene of organized activity and a number of more cheerful faces, despite the rain.

Mr. Benny Proulx' voice was to be heard over the amplifier system summoning this or that woman to the office to receive a cable or other message, or make contact with friends.

Mr. Kendall, who had to give up his improvised home in the Press Box for an indigent family, said the night was quiet and watchmen and police afforded adequate guard to the Colony's latest impromptu hotel.

MAKING "HOMES" COMFORTABLE

Towards morning, some of the children began to complain of sickness and one was taken to hospital. Apart from nerves, etc., the remainder of the people are generally well. They enjoyed an excellent breakfast at 8.30 a.m. and spent the morning getting their few belongings in order and making their "homes" more comfortable. The erection of a shelter in front of the centre of the stand is almost complete and doors and partitions are being built to enclose the sleeping accommodation for the Empress of Asia's passengers, arriving to-day. The dining tables were neatly set foriffin and the surroundings generally were quite cheerful, considering all the circumstances.

The telephone was so busy that the people in charge have asked that outsiders do not ring more than necessary, as the telephones are chiefly for use for outgoing calls.

Some whitewashing and cleaning have been done to make certain other parts of the building habitable if the necessity arise.

It is understood that some difficulty was found in making entering arrangements for the new arrivals to-night, but the authorities have now found an Army contractor who can undertake this big task.

Cool Spell Continues

Weather May Improve Later

Hongkong is still enjoying its cool spell, despite the frequent rain. Royal Observatory returns show that the maximum temperature yesterday was 74, or three degrees lower than the previous day, with the night minimum unchanged at 76. At 10 a.m. to-day, the reading was 80, or one degree lower than yesterday, but humidity was markedly higher at 81. Rainfall for the 24 hours ended at 10 a.m. to-day was 1.66 inches, bringing the year's total to 62.39, against an average of 63.02.

This morning's weather report reads: Pressure is highest over the Pacific to the south-east of Japan. The China Sea depression is situated in Hainan Str. and is stationary or moving slowly W.N.W. There are still indications of a typhoon about 300 miles east of the Balingan Channel. Local forecast: East winds, moderate; cloudy, showery, probably improving.

The Manila Observatory reports at 9.30 a.m. that the typhoon is situated in about Long. 127, Lat. 20, moving north-west.

MOTOR MISHAP

Sanitary Inspector S. K. Luk has reported to the police yesterday that while he was driving a car along Dundas Street he knocked down an 11-year-old Chinese boy who was taken to the Kowloon Hospital for treatment to injuries received.

APPEAL TO WOMEN OF HONGKONG

A Ladies' Welfare Committee has been formed to assist and advise the evacuees from Shanghai, consisting of the following: Mrs. N. L. Smith, Lady MacGregor, Mrs. R. E. Lindsell, Mrs. R. M. Henderson, Mrs. R. A. C. North.

A Welfare and Information Bureau has been opened at the Happy Valley Quarters and information or help is available there for all who may require it.

The Committee is being helped by a number of ladies, but there is a great deal to be done and the Committee will be glad to receive the names of others who wish to volunteer their services.

Offers of help should be addressed to the Organising Secretary, Mrs. R. A. C. North, 404 The Peak.

ENTIRE NATION AT WAR

CHINA CONFIDENT

JAPANESE BEING SURROUNDED

Shanghai, Aug. 21. The present hostilities in Shanghai and Nankow are not mere local affairs, as in the past, but concrete evidence that the entire nation has gone to war with Japan, declared General Chang Chih-chung, Commander of the Nanking-Shanghai Garrison, in an interview with the Central News Agency correspondent behind the Chinese lines yesterday afternoon.

"The strong and determined stand which we have put up on both fronts," General Chang explained, "clearly shows that China is engaging Japan on a large-scale war."

He declined to state whether China would formally declare war on Japan, adding that such matters must be left to the highest authorities in the Central Government.

Questioned about the Chinese positions around Shanghai, General Chang merely stated that the Japanese were being slowly surrounded and will shortly be defeated. He estimated that there are between 12 and 15 thousand Japanese in Shanghai vicinity.

General Chang ridiculed the Japanese claim that over 80 Chinese planes had been shot down and destroyed by Japanese bombers since the opening of hostilities in Shanghai.

The Chinese General, who is directing the operations at Shanghai, reiterated his pledge to give protection to foreign lives and property in Shanghai.

General Chang predicted that the present war will be a long one and declared that in the end it will prove disastrous to Japan.—Central News.

FOREIGN POLICE SHOT AT BY CHINESE

ANOTHER day's warfare has begun in Shanghai, Japanese warships being early active in bombing operations, to which Chinese artillery are vigorously replying. Chinese entrenched south-east of Shanghai have also been subjected to bombing by Japanese planes. In the Kiangwan district, Chinese and Japanese planes met in the air, and one machine, whether Chinese or Japanese is not known, has been brought down. In consequence of the Chinese bombing of Japanese positions, huge fires have broken out in the Yangtsepo and Hongkew districts. The outbreak is said to be on an even larger scale than that which practically destroyed Chapei in 1932. YESTERDAY there was much aerial activity at various points, and one incident occurred when a foreign police party was fired upon from Chinese positions when returning from taking food to nuns besieged in the Sacred Heart Convent.

Shanghai, Aug. 21 (3 a.m.). Shanghai experienced the biggest fire in the history of the city last night when the Yangtsepo and Hongkew districts, now under Japanese military occupation, were turned into a veritable inferno. The fire was started late in the evening when Chinese planes rained bombs after bomb on the Japanese positions at Yungfang Road. At the same time another squadron of Chinese bombers released their deadly missiles on Woosung Road and the western section of Broadway. The flames lit up the whole city and were visible for miles around. Another bomb hit and set fire to the Japanese-owned Jih Iwa Cotton Mill on the Pootung side of the river. The conflagration last night far exceeds the big fire which destroyed Chapei in 1932. Chinese military authorities believe that last night's fire will be able to assist them to dislodge the Japanese who have been stubbornly holding that area.—Central News.

BOMBING RE-STARTS
Shanghai, Aug. 21. (9 a.m.). The bombing of Pootung by Japanese planes heralded another day's warfare. Japanese warships along the river from Shanghai to Woosung joined in the attack, to which Chinese artillery replied. The Japanese initiated the day's aerial activity by bombing the Chinese positions south-east of Shanghai. Soon afterwards, two Chinese planes flew over the city, drawing severe anti-aircraft fire from the Japanese, which lasted three minutes. Shells burst over the central district. Chinese planes dropped no bombs. Subsequently, Chinese and Japanese planes met in the air over the Kiangwan district, and one plane, the identity of which is unknown, was shot down, the pilot bailing out in his parachute.—Reuter.

Shanghai, Aug. 20. Chinese planes have been dropping bombs at intervals of a few minutes and shaking the buildings in the central district of Shanghai. The first reports of observers indicated that the bombs were falling in the vicinity of Woosung Road. A fire is raging on the Pootung side of the Whangpoo, believed to be the Japanese-owned Nikka cotton mill. Chinese bombers disappeared over Chapei later today. (Continued on Page 4.)

GRIM SCENE FROM REGION WHERE BOMBS FELL

Here is a grim reminder of the horrors of aerial warfare. These Chinese were amongst the huge number who were killed last Saturday when bombs from Chinese planes fell near the New World amusement resort in the French Concession in Shanghai. (Photo by Mrs. Rosario, of Shanghai).

ANXIETY FOR SIR WM. HORNE
The many friends of Sir William Hornell, Vice-Chancellor of the Hongkong University, who narrowly escaped drowning at Repulse Bay yesterday, will regret to learn that his condition gives cause for some anxiety. Professor Gerrard issued the following bulletin this morning: "Sir William Hornell passed a restless night. His morning's condition shows slight improvement, but is still grave."

Manila Rocked By Quakes
Jefferson Passengers Faint
Manila, Aug. 21. Two of the severest earthquakes suffered by Manila for many years past occurred at 8 p.m. and 8.20 p.m. The shocks created confusion amongst the passengers who were disembarking from the President Jefferson, and several of these, who had been evacuated from Shanghai, fainted. The city has not been seriously damaged.—United Press.

33 INJURED, AT LEAST ONE KILLED
This morning's stocktaking of last night's earthquake damage is estimated to be 33 people injured, at least one killed, the city's water supply drastically curtailed due to burst mains, the collapse of several houses, and a number of buildings such as the Insular Life, in which Reuter's office is situated, and Heacock's big department store which is cracked. Thousands spent the night in open spaces, fearing further quakes. City fire brigades answered nine calls during the night. Many Shanghai refugees, who had arrived that day become hysterical when the lights failed at Pier Seven, and general panic reigned for a few minutes until order was restored. Then a second shock 10 minutes later resulted in a stampede from the pier buildings to the streets. However, happily nobody was injured, and there were no further quakes during the night.—United Press.

NO PASSPORTS FOR CHINA
U.S. Department's Announcement
Washington, Aug. 20. Persons applying to the State Department for passports to China are being told that these won't be issued except in extraordinary cases. It is understood that Americans wishing to travel to China on urgent business will be accorded passport facilities, but in no case would passports be issued to women and children.—Reuter.

JAPANESE SAID HARD PRESSED
Both Flanks Now Vulnerable
London, Aug. 20. The Chinese Embassy here has issued a statement in the following terms: "The Japanese forces have been driven into the International Settlement to the north of the Soochow Creek. The Japanese lines are now pressed into a long arc-shape measuring approximately 8,000 metres long and 2,500 to 1,000 metres deep. They are therefore becoming easily vulnerable on both flanks. "Thus compressed, the Japanese guns have been rendered ineffective, and fighting is now mostly hand-to-hand. A renewed Japanese attempt to land on the Pootung side of the river was repulsed. "In the Charhar sector in North China, the Chinese have gained notable victories. They have recovered Shanghai, Changpeh and other places over an extensive area over south-west Charhar which the Japanese had occupied. The statement adds that the Chinese War Ministry has announced that from August 14 to 16 over thirty Japanese planes were brought down. It is also revealed in official reports that at the battle at Hankow on August 14, a whole regiment under Colonel Lo Chai-fung fought to the last man in defence of the Chinese position and was almost completely annihilated before reinforcements arrived.—Reuter.

Expert Coming To Aid Anti-Cholera Measures
Geneva, Aug. 20. The Singapore office of the League of Nations Organisation for Hygiene has telegraphed the Secretariat that Doctor Park, Director of the Office, is proceeding to Hongkong to confer with the authorities in regard to measures to avoid the spreading of the cholera epidemic. Dr. Park will be accompanied by Dr. Brodie, the League sanitary expert for China.—Reuter.

China Objects To Berlin's Press Reports
Berlin, Aug. 20. It is reported that the Chinese Legation complained to the Foreign office to-day of what they termed the lack of objectivity of the German press reports on the Chinese-Japanese situation. The Legation claimed that they were uninformed as to whether Dr. H. H. Kung, China's Minister of Finance, would return, but suggested that he would probably come to Paris, but did not say whether it would be connected with the negotiations with Skoda Works or the Schelder Creuzot.—United Press.

BIG AIR RACE ONLY ONE BRITISH ENTRY
London, Aug. 20. The machine used by Major Campbell Black in the race to Australia is the only British entry in an air race from Marseilles to Damascus and back to Paris. Italy is making a strong bid with eight entries of powerful machines.—Reuter.

STEEL PRICES TOO HIGH
London, Aug. 20. Lord Nuffield has attacked the steel industry in Britain, stating that if producers do not reduce their prices, Britain will be forced to buy abroad at one-third of the home price.—Reuter Bulletin.

STINGAREES SEEN IN STANLEY BAY
Two stingarees were seen yesterday morning swimming just off St. Stephen's College bathing pier in Stanley Bay. The two fishes then disappeared under the water. Stingarees are huge kite-shaped fish with long whip-like tails and are generally peculiar only to Australian waters. The explanation offered for their appearance in Stanley Bay is that they must have been driven in by the strong wind and unusual weather the Colony is at present experiencing.

ROOSEVELT ON THE AUGUSTA INCIDENT

CALM ATTITUDE ADOPTED

ALTHOUGH President Roosevelt and his Cabinet are highly concerned over the U.S.S. Augusta incident at Shanghai when a seaman on board was killed yesterday as a result of a shell hitting the American warship, reports from Washington indicate that the United States will not as yet invoke the Neutrality Act. Rather has President Roosevelt signified his desire that the American authorities on the spot should investigate the affair. Washington reports show, however, that while there are American nationals to protect in Shanghai, the Augusta will not move from her position in the Whangpoo.

Washington, Aug. 20. Officials of the Navy Department today stated that they expect the Commander of the United States Asiatic fleet to make a sharp protest both to China and Japan concerning the explosion of an anti-aircraft shell aboard the U.S.S. Augusta. News of the incident spread quickly through the capital and caused several members of Congress to comment that the time has come for President Roosevelt to invoke the Neutrality Act.

Naked And Undisguised Brutality
Asked to comment on the incident, President Roosevelt said that whatever action was deemed advisable in connection with the Augusta would be determined by the authorities on the spot. When asked whether retaliation was contemplated, the President replied that such incidents are almost bound to happen in such a situation. President Roosevelt reinforced that the invocation of the Neutrality Act would await the official severance of diplomatic relations between China and Japan.

JAPAN ACCUSED BY U.S. PRESS
Washington, Aug. 20. Win or lose, Japan will never be able to "justify" this "unspendable outrage," comments the Washington Morning Post in an editorial on the Shanghai events. "Often in history," continues the comment, "great nations have risked moral condemnation and jeopardised their future in order to satisfy their lust for conquest, but never has such an action been taken more blatantly and with less regard for the consequences to civilisation as a whole than in the case of the present Japanese attack on Shanghai." "All the power of her efficient military machine won't be strong enough to offset the enduring hostility which Japan is now creating by this display of naked, undisguised brutality," concludes the comment.—Reuter.

STOP PRESS
The view that the Neutrality Act should be invoked is not shared by Mr. McReynolds, Chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee, who said that the Augusta incident was unfortunate but he believed President Roosevelt was right in not yet invoking the Act. He added that the matter will be taken up by the proper authorities, but he did not doubt it would be found that the bombing was unintentional. "It is just one of those incidents which are bound to happen when you are around when a war is going on," he added. Mr. McReynolds said that the Neutrality Act should not be made effective until the United States had determined the real facts, and he concluded with the observation "We have hitherto had trouble between Japan and China which at the time looked very serious, but was soon over." Speaking at a Press Conference today, Mr. Cordell Hull, U.S. Secretary of State, described the shelling of the Augusta as "an unfortunate incident," and added that the United States was continuing the attitude that Americans in Shanghai must be protected while they remain there, but that they were being urged to evacuate the city "to the fullest possible extent."—Reuter.

AUGUSTA TO REMAIN
Washington, Aug. 20. Despite the reiterated demands of Senators Clark and Nye, demanding the invocation of neutrality and recalling all troops and civilians, Senator Pittman said that the incident was no reason to recall the warship for "as long as American citizens in China are in danger, it is the duty of the Navy to remove them to safety, regardless of the risk involved." Senator Borah termed it as unfortunate and was at loss to know what the Government could do while Mr. Cordell Hull merely echoed President Roosevelt.—United Press.

Get Him To Make You A Writing Board

A WRITING board should be 30ins. for wood that's half-inch thick. Cut it down to long and 18ins. broad. It's for writing on in the garden when it's too much trouble to bring out a table.

Indoors it's the most comfortable thing to write letters on in an armchair. When you've no one to talk to you can play patience on it.

All you need is a large piece of wood—an old table top maybe, or the side of a crate. Try

If he knows it annoys you—

When he borrows a dollar from the chip you've shared a taxi with and doesn't offer to change a note.

When your expensive new hat is admired and he says he knows for a fact you got it for five dollars, at a sale, because that's his idea of a joke. When he takes your stories right out of your mouth and garbles them.

When you have to disown the ribald guffaws that keep the men downstairs for hours at dinner parties, while the women are discussing servant trouble in the drawing-room.

When he explains for you that you're not interested in politics or racing or cars or wine.

When you give friends a lift home and they say, "Drop us here, then you won't come out of your way," he just says "O.K." and drops them.

When at bedtime he has three pieces of cake and says, "If there's one thing Jean can do it's make cake."

When he has telephone talks in front of visitors punctuated with "Yes, my sweet," and "No, darling."

—MAYBE HE'LL STOP

(maybe he won't)

If he's fond of taking your picture...

If your husband photographs you his own way he'll probably fumble about so long with camera stops, exposure charts, that by the time he takes you you'll have stiffened up. You may even look ten years older than you are.

Here's the way to stop that kind of thing. First of all, get your husband to make a note of the view-finder capacity of his camera. Don't let him start pacing vaguely up and down the lawn counting up the distance in what he calls yards.

Get him to remember how far he must be away from you to get you standing up. How near he can be to you and get a photograph of you sitting down profile-wise to the camera.

Working this way, all that happens is that he focuses the camera according to the type of picture he wants to take, then walks towards you or lets you walk towards him until the view-finder is nearly filled—then he presses the trigger.

No need to face up to it

THE next thing to do is to get it out of your husband's head that to take a successful photograph you've got to smile into the sun or anything like it. You can get lens caps (something like a short section of piping) that let you put your camera almost straight into the sun. That lets you smile without blinking into the glare.

If he loses the lens cap get him to hold a hat so that the hat's shadow falls on the lens; the effect will be very nearly as good.

Give yourself a Chance

THIRDLY choose your own background. Don't go and get taken against the side of a house where the sharp lines of windows and doors will draw attention away from you to the background. Make sure that you won't appear in the picture to have a piece of tree growing out of your hair. Don't let him take you on half a garden seat.

See that he Understands

OFTEN the background should be out of focus—a vague blur in which every highlight on your own hair should stand out clearly.

To fade out the background you should use a wide stop opening—that is one of the stops with a small number. The effect of using a large stop opening is to cut down the distance within which objects can be focused sharply. The larger the stop the more easily objects can be faded out in front of or behind what you're photographing.

Using an F2 (very large stop) you can fade out objects only a few inches in front or behind of a point a yard away from you.

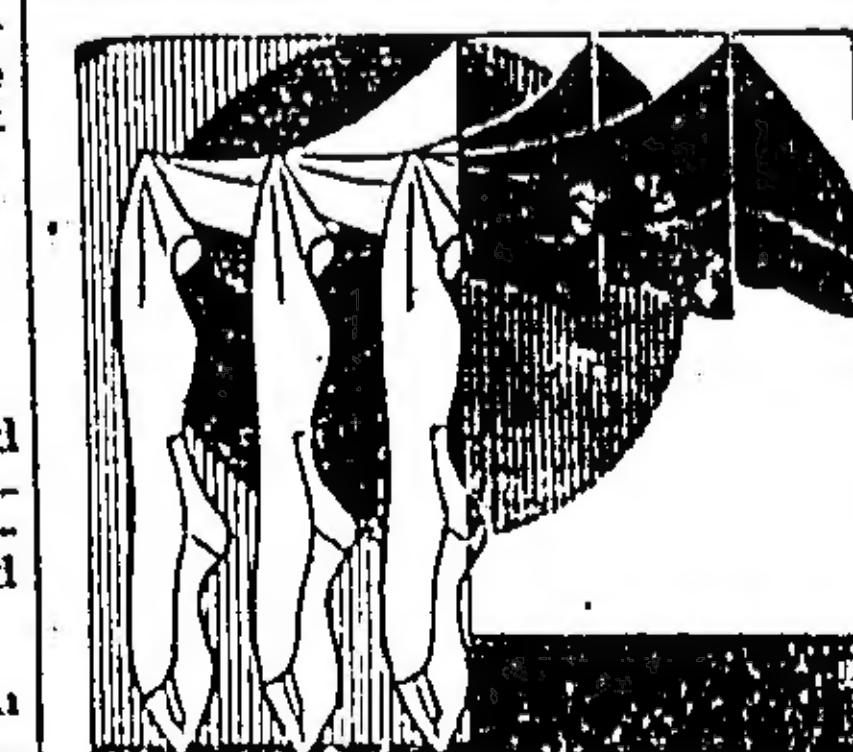

You can get a card from any dealer telling you just how much margin of focus you've got with your camera at different distances and at different stop openings. But get your husband to learn the card off by heart before he starts to take a photograph.

Wants a steady Hand

MANY of the blurred photographs you see are caused by not holding the camera steady. Watch out your husband doesn't jog the camera when he releases the shutter.

And, of course, psychology comes into it as well. If your husband can tell you a story that really makes you laugh he's pretty certain to turn out good snaps of you.

Pictures taken of people just beginning to smile are best of all.

This hot day drink? It's a variation on a gin-fizz theme.

Take the white of one egg, 1½ozs. of gin; a teaspoonful powdered sugar, ¼oz. of lemon juice, ¼oz. of lime juice, 1oz. of fresh milk, plenty of ice.
Shake till the mixture gets foamy.

This Belt is made from Rug Wool

You need one skein cable rug wool. Three is reached turn and come back the opposite way. Take care to keep the stitching at an even tension, otherwise the belt will flut.

The belt is made by sewing lengths of rug wool together by slip-stitching. For the first belt is ready for the braiding. Start by making a measurement allow eight inches more than the loop for the button, then continue to braid in a desired length, slip-stitch this on to another scroll design. On one side of the belt make the length, taking care not to show any stitches on loop at the top and the other side make the loop at the bottom. The buttons are made by coiling the wool.

Instead of cutting the wool into lengths, you required size. Sew one on each side to correspond can get a neat finish by turning the wool at the with the loop and sew the centre one on the right ends. When the end of the first row of stitching side to complete the decoration.

Take Care of Those Bumps!

CHILDREN are always falling off fences, slipping into the lily pond, or getting a punch on the nose from the little boy next door. Most mothers soon learn not to be fussy. If they were—they would be applying butter and raw steak all day long!

But there is a big difference between minor bumps and serious accidents. The wise mother always investigates why her child is crying and what has caused his hurt. If he hits his head against the garden roller it may mean only a bruise which lasts a few hours. On the other hand, it may involve several weeks in bed with concussion.

How are you to tell the difference? The child himself will usually give the clue. A boy who has hurt himself lets everyone know it by his prodigious cries. If, however, the matter is slight he will be laughing a few moments later. It is time to worry when he comes in quietly, sits alone in a corner and declares that "he doesn't feel like playing any more." In such cases it is a wise plan to take him to a doctor immediately and find out whether anything is wrong.

Here is an example of the care necessary. One twelve-years-old boy fell while at school. For a couple of days afterwards he complained that his foot hurt. No one took much notice—except mother. She, being a wise woman and knowing her son was no "cry baby," took him along to a hospital. The foot was X-rayed and a small splinter of bone discovered. For six weeks the child was not allowed to walk. Had the injury been neglected the boy would have become permanently lame.

Accidents Will Happen

Any fall, however slight it may be at the time, should be investigated. The bones of children, because they are so soft, are easily injured. The simplest accident may mean a displaced hip or a broken finger. If you neglected it, and your child suffered in later years, your child would never forgive your own neglect.

Some parents even pride themselves on their "hardy" children. They watch them fall off trees with seeming impunity, take a toss from a horse and come up smiling, or fight happily with one another. But how ever strong your children may be their constitution cannot withstand accidents.

If you want your children to grow up with sturdy, straight limbs—do watch these accidents with a cautious eye. No mother can ever be too careful where her child's bodily fitness is concerned.

NEW GROUNDS FOR DIVORCE NEXT YEAR

Incurable Insanity, Cruelty And Desertion

NO RELIEF FOR THREE YEARS
SAVE IN SPECIAL CASES

MR. A. P. Herbert's Matrimonial Causes Bill, as amended by the House of Lords, which was passed without a division by the House of Commons recently, has received the Royal Assent. It will not, however, take effect until January 1.

The measure extends the grounds for divorce or nullity to include:

Desertion for three years; incurable insanity of five years' standing; cruelty; and insanity or epilepsy at the time of marriage.

Except in cases of special hardship or depravity, divorce may not be granted until three years after the marriage. One clause, making it unnecessary for evidence given in securing a judicial separation to be repeated in the Divorce Court, is likely to reduce the cost of divorce to certain applicants.

MR. A. P. HERBERT'S TRIUMPH

Tribute By M.Ps.

In little more than an hour the House of Commons agreed to the Lords' amendments to the Marriage Bill—now, at their lordships' desire, entitled the Matrimonial Causes Bill.

There could hardly have been a shorter consumption of parliamentary time for settlement of the final issues of a question which has been vexed in and out of Parliament for a generation. With little discussion and without a single division the amendments, which filled some six pages, were accepted.

Not in our time has any private member had such a legislative success as Mr. A. P. Herbert when he saw the bill thus pass triumphantly its last fence. The records of Parliament are strewn with the failures of measures of divorce reform. Mr. Herbert, who entered the House of Commons only two years ago, brought the cause to victory in his second session.

VALUE OF BILL

"Most Important Of Session"

No one could have been more modest when the hour of achievement struck. He was content to thank the Government for giving the time of the House, his associates in the conduct of the bill for their work, all members for their co-operation and kindness and Mr. De la Bere, who used his luck in the ballot to give the bill its opportunity.

Dr. Denham proceeded to congratulate him on his remarkable success. There were some murmurs of applause at the pronouncement that many people would consider the bill the most important of the session and all would agree that it was of major importance.

Both Church and State—some chuckles were heard at this—had kept studiously aloof. That showed what reason, persuasion and consciousness of representing a large measure of opinion would enable a private member to accomplish.

Prolonged if quiet applause accompanied the passing of the bill and, as Mr. Herbert went out, a number of members gave him their congratulations.

WAITING PERIOD
No Bargain With Opponents

Debate was concentrated on the Lords' amendment to the famous first clause, substituting three years for five as the period after marriage during which divorce cannot be obtained. Mr. Herbert insisted that the clause had never been a bargain with opponents. It was in the original bill, it had been in a former bill.

He said in the Commons that five years might be too long, while he declared that he could not consent to any fundamental alteration.

A "tremendous barrage" had been fired upon the "unfortunate clause" in the Lords by lawyers, laymen, bishops and even the Archbishop of Canterbury. The Archbishop opposed the revised clause. Not for the first time, Mr. Herbert found himself "unable to understand the workings of that great mind."

The Speaker then warned him not to quote too literally from speeches in the upper House.

For the first time, Mr. Herbert, continued, they had in the divorce law a declaration that marriage was not a temporary alliance. This clause would be in the minds of everybody who contemplated marriage.

It was originally intended that the Matrimonial Causes Bill should take effect as soon as it had been placed on the Statute Book. As the result of an amendment passed by the House of Commons it will not now come into force until January 1 next.

By its main provisions the measure extends the grounds for both divorce and nullity proceedings:

Prohibits divorce for three years after marriage, except in cases of special hardship; and Empowers the Court to treat a decree of judicial separation as proof in subsequent divorce proceedings, of the grounds on which the separation was granted.

DIVORCE AND NULLITY

New Grounds For Decrees

Ground for divorce under the bill will be:

Adultery; desertion for three years; cruelty; incurable insanity of five years' standing; and unnatural offences by a husband.

Grounds upon which a decree of nullity may be obtained are:

JURY SYSTEM FAILS IN INDIA

UNWILLINGNESS TO CONVICT

TO MENTALITY"

Calcutta, July 29.

The comparative failure of the Jury system in India was commented by the acting Chief Justice, Sir L. W. J. Costello, of the Calcutta High Court, when he referred to the unwillingness of Jurors to return a verdict of guilty in murder cases in India.

In a case in which Shalk Gaffur was charged with murdering his wife, the Jury unanimously found the accused not guilty, but the sessions Judge was of opinion that this verdict was perverse and manifestly wrong.

In delivering judgment, his lordship observed that the view taken by the judge was correct.

This, his lordship continued, was one of those instances which unfortunately occurred only too frequently in India of Jurors declining, or at any rate, being unwilling to conform to the calls which they had taken to do their duty to the community and the country. The question would arise whether the whole Jury system was not totally unsuitable to the mentality of the persons who were likely to be Jurors in India, or whether some other system ought not to be put into operation in cases of persons charged with serious offences.

His lordship added that the prosecution established their case beyond all possible doubt, and the Jury ought to have found the accused guilty.

The accused was sentenced to death.

Insanity, mental deficiency, or epilepsy at the time of the marriage; venereal disease in a communicable form at the time of the marriage; and pregnancy of the respondent at the time of the marriage by some person other than the petitioner.

In the last three cases the petitioner must have been ignorant of the facts alleged.

COLLUSION AND DELAY

Relief For Clergy

Other provisions deal with:

Dissolution of marriage on presumption of death;

Financial provision for children;

The position of wives whose husbands leave the country; and

Refusal of divorce where there has been connivance, condonation, collusion or unreasonable delay in presenting the petition.

The court is empowered to grant divorce before expiry of the three-year period after marriage where the petitioner has suffered "exceptional hardship" or the respondent has shown "exceptional depravity."

In such cases application may be made to a judge to allow the presentation of a petition before the three years have elapsed.

A final clause provides that no clergyman of the Church of England or the Church of Wales shall be compelled to solemnise the marriage of a divorced person whose former spouse is still living or to permit the solemnisation of such marriage in his church.

The bill does not apply to Scotland or Northern Ireland.

These disorders, moreover, are local in origin and contradict the declared policies of the Japanese and Chinese Governments which are to seek a peaceful solution of the difficulties between them.

MERIT OF PLAN

The situation therefore appears to be one from which both the Chinese and Japanese would desire to escape any practicable means of escape. The merit of the plan for withdrawal of the Japanese and Chinese military forces from the Shanghai zone, which was evolved by the diplomatic, consular, military and naval authorities of Great Britain and other Powers, is that it takes advantage of the essential fact about the situation as it stands, namely, that the Chinese have no reason for attacking any part of the International Settlement once Japanese reinforcements, military and naval, are withdrawn, and that the Japanese have no need of these reinforcements once the safety of their nationals in Shanghai is secured. The only remaining danger to the latter after withdrawal of the Chinese military forces would be from irresponsible which the British and other neutral troops could easily control.—British Wireless.

FOREIGN POLICE FIRED UPON

A foreign Police party, returning from the Convent of the Sacred Heart at Yangtze-poo, where they brought food for the trapped nuns, reported fierce fighting in the Ward Road district where the Chinese position behind the goliards' quarters fired on the Police car.

Heavy Japanese bombing of Pootung is continuing. Confusion reigned when two shells from a Japanese warship "berthed" downstream fell near the intersection of the Bund and Avenue Edward VII. However they became imbedded in a warehouse on the French Bund, and caused only slight damage.

Later revised reports from observers said that one Chinese bomb fell at Pootung Point and one at Whangpoo near the Japanese Consulate, which remained undamaged. Five bombs fell in the vicinity of Paoshung near the Japanese Naval landing party barracks.—United Press.

PANIC ON BUND

Shanghai, Aug. 20.
The appearance of Chinese planes over the Settlement to-day caused a panic amongst the populace of the central district. Hundreds of people sprinted down Nanjing Road away from the Bund, fearing that bombs would fall in the immediate vicinity, although they actually fell across the creek.

The planes followed a westward flight and three bombers flew across the Whangpoo, after which there was heavy fire from Chinese artillery on the Pootung side, accompanied by sudden spurting of flames.

Immediately prior to the Chinese plane bombardment, the U.S.S. Augusta sounded a blast clearing the sailors from the forward deck. Machine-guns, mortars and Volunteers have erected barricades on the Bund. The Chinese land forces have again penetrated the Kowloon Road district.

Huge clouds of smoke from fires in the East Seward Road district floated over the scene, frequently obscuring the Chinese planes.—United Press.

BRITISH PROTESTS

London, Aug. 20.
To-day's reports from Shanghai indicate widespread destruction of property in the area north of the Szechow Creek by bombardment and fire.

The Chinese and Japanese Governments are being informed that the British Government must reserve all its rights as regards holding those Governments responsible for damage or loss to either life or property that may be incurred by British subjects as a result of the action of the Chinese and Japanese forces.

A protest is also being made to the Japanese Government regarding British properties in the International Settlement which have been occupied by Japanese forces, and the Japanese Government is being informed that even if the occupation can be justified, compensation for such occupation will be payable, in addition to compensation which may result from any loss or damage and that claims will therefore be presented in due course.—British Wireless.

NOW ON WAY TO THE NORTH

The submarines H.M.S. Roquai and H.M.S. Grampus left Hongkong at 9 a.m. to-day bound for Weihaiwei. These two additions to the China Station have now been painted the hue which is distinctive to ships of the station. They made an impressive sight in the harbor as they speedily manoeuvred and turned off through Lyceum. They appear much bigger than other submarines out here though the actual difference is small.

SLAVE SHIP

The story of the 20th Century-Fox Film starring Warner Baxter and Wallace Beery

SUSPICIOUS of Captain Lovett, the mate, Thompson (Wallace Beery), goes ashore alone to arrange the slave deal with the trader, Danelo (Joseph Schildkraut). Not suspecting the mutineers' plan to sail away without paying for the cargo of slaves, Danelo promptly orders the loading of the negroes aboard the Albatross to begin.

WHEN the loading is complete, Captain Lovett (Warner Baxter), is brought ashore, and Danelo looks to him for payment. But Lovett, pointing to the activity aboard the Albatross as the mutineers prepare to get under way, tells the slave-trader that his crew has revolted and are leaving without him. Danelo, blaming Lovett, reaches for his gun.

AFTER a desperate fight with Danelo, Lovett escapes and forces a native boat crew to row him to the Albatross, whose sails are just filling. While Thompson and the cabin boy, Swiftly (Mickey Rooney), keep watch at the gangway, the captain climbs over the far rail, slugs the helmsman, and seizes the gun locker.

JOINED by his wife (Elizabeth Allan), Lovett gives her a pistol, and the two prepare to fight it out with the crew, who have no guns but are amply supplied with marlin spikes and belaying pins, which they can hurl with deadly accuracy. Lovett and his wife stand off the first charge of the mutineers, but realize that it is only a matter of time until they will be starved out or break from weariness. (To be continued)

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LESSON SERMON

First Church of Christ, Scientist, Hongkong

The subject of the Lesson Sermon in all churches of Christ, Scientist, to-morrow, August 22, will be: "Mind".

The Golden Text will be: "Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus" (Philippians 2:5). Among others, the following citations from the Bible will be read: "O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out! For who hath known the mind of the Lord? or who hath been his counsellor? For of him and through him, and to him, are all things: to whom be glory for ever" (Rom. 11:33, 34, 36).

The Lesson Sermon will also include the following passages from the Christian Science Textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "God is Mind, and God is infinite; hence all is Mind. On this statement rests the Science of being, and the Principle of this Science is divine, demonstrating harmony and immortality. Let us accept Science, rejecting all theories based on sense-testimony, give up imperfect models and illusive ideals; and so let us have one God, one Mind, and that one perfect, producing his own models of excellence. Divine metaphysics, as revealed to spiritual understanding, shows clearly that all is Mind, and that Mind is God, omnipotence, omnipresence, omniscience,—that is, all power, all presence, all Science" (pages 402, 249, 275).

While by the "Lido Lady" Sir William got into difficulties and in answer to his cries Miss May Mitchell, secretary at the University, swam to his side, but both disappeared beneath the water. A sudden gust of wind then swung the "Lido Lady" round and hit Sir William on the head, causing a severe scalp wound. ## VIENNESE GIRL TO WED EGYPTIAN PREMIER

Romance In Her Father's Hotel Bar

TEWFIK NESSIM PASHA, wealthy 64-year-old former Prime Minister of Egypt, is to marry seventeen-year-old Fraulein "Mary" Hubner, daughter of a Vienna hotel proprietor.

Two months ago Nessim Pasha walked into the bar of Herr Hubner's hotel at Cobenzel on the hills overlooking Vienna. Fraulein Hubner was acting as receptionist in the bar.

Nessim Pasha fell in love with her—just as quickly as that.

Later, Mary, brown-haired, brown-eyed, her eyebrows pencilled to a fashionable line and her slim figure clothed in a black coat and skirt, sat at a table in her father's open-air cafe in the Stadt Park in Vienna and told the Daily Mail her love story.

She spoke in excellent English. "You see, I was at Micklefield School, in Seaford, near Brighton, for two years. That is why I am known as Mary. My name is really Maria."

In the background a large sign said: "Visit the Cobenzel Bar." Mary smiled as she glanced at it. "Yes, that is where I first met my fiancé. Nessim Pasha first came to Vienna for a rest and for treatment from the Viennese doctors."

"After our first meeting we saw each other nearly every day. Then one evening he asked me if I would marry him and go to Egypt. I told him I would think it over."

She paused. Then said quickly:

blushing. "Well, I thought it over and said yes."

The wedding will take place in the town hall in Vienna on Oct 1, and will be a civil ceremony.

"I was brought up a Roman Catholic," said Mary. "I am giving up my Roman Catholicism, but I shall not assume my fiancé's religion—Islam."

Mary's engagement ring is a solitaire diamond.

Nessim Pasha has ordered his family's ancestral jewels, worth more than £80,000, to be sent to Vienna as his wedding gift to his bride.

For their honeymoon the couple will visit India.

Nessim Pasha is at present staying at Marienbad, in Czechoslovakia. He said:—

"We will live part of the year in one of my houses in Cairo and part in my old family home in Luxor. There may be a Muslim ceremony in the chief Cairo mosque."

"It is not necessary for the wife of a Muslim to assume her husband's religion."

"I will continue my political career after my marriage."

Nessim Pasha is a widower, has no children. His first wife was an Egyptian.

HOLLYWOOD PLEADS FOR DANCING AT THE 1940 OLYMPICS

(By JACK GUENTHER)

United Press Staff Correspondent Hollywood.

A handful of motion picture dancers, backed by athletic coaches and trainers, appealed to the American Olympic Committee to include dancing on the programme of the next Olympic Games, to be held at Tokyo in 1940.

A petition was sent to Avery Brundage, President of the A. O. C., asking that "tap dancing, wooden shoe and acrobatic dancing" be given representation in the games "in the interests of the millions of amateur dancers throughout the world."

The move was begun by George Murphy, screen dancer and son of Mike Murphy, an Olympic coach. In addition to film personages, the petition is backed by dozens of prominent sports figures, among them Dean Cromwell, University of Southern California track coach and member of the Olympic coaching team at Berlin last year. Howard Jones, football coach at U.S.C., and James J. Jeffries, former world heavyweight boxing champion.

It was signed by Murphy, Tilly Losch, Buddy Ebsen, Eleanor Powell, Judy Garland, daughter of William Garland, who represented Southern California at the 1936 games, and numerous others.

Although dancing is not, strictly speaking, a competitive sport, the petitioners claimed it is just as much an athletic endeavour as lesser known branches of the games. Additionally, it was declared that more people dance than follow any single form of physical recreation.

"AN EXCELLENT IDEA"

This line of thought was expressed by Jones, who said:—

"I think it is an excellent idea, even if they do laugh at me for saying so. Every physical endeavour imaginable is performed in the Olympics, so why not dancing. It surely is a sport that demands great skill and effort."

Jeffries, although perhaps the least inclined toward terpsichorean endeavours, nevertheless was the most enthusiastic, although for strictly personal reasons. He said:

"It's a great idea. It would be swell training for fighters who dance as much as they fight these days."

Cromwell considered such action as advantageous from a standpoint of health. "It is good training for future athletes, and contributes much to the health of youngsters."

The petition said, in part: "We realize that you of course are cognizant of the growing interest in this recreation at nearly every school and playground in America as well as in England, France, Germany, Japan and other nations."

"We feel that this endeavour is particularly conducive to the health of youth because it not only requires athletic ability but is entertaining and recreative as well."

"We believe that a place could be found for this sport on the Olympic programme as a division of rhythmic in singles as well as team competitions."

"As professionals, we of course are ineligible, but we would like to see amateur performers given the opportunity to display their talent to the world."

Preferential Tariff For Philippines Opposed

Washington, United States. Without preferential status between the two countries, the rich Philippine market would be completely lost to American industrial exporters, particularly in textiles, mining and other heavy machinery and automobiles.

The attitude of American industrialists was sounded by E. P. Thomas, president of the National Foreign Trade Council, representing 500 leading importers and exporters, when he told the committee.

Application by the United States of full tariffs against Philippine products will of necessity reduce both the value and volume of Philippine exports and bring about a corresponding decrease in Philippine purchasing power to the consequent detriment of American exports.

Thomas added later that "the continued prosperity of the Philippine Islands is an important factor in the prosperity of the United States, as they rank ninth as a customer and seventh in our imports."

He asserted that "there is no possible basis" for differentiating between Cuba and the Philippines, and suggested the feasibility of a United States-Philippine trade pact similar to the present United States-Cuban agreement.

On the other hand, the politically powerful United States Beet Sugar Association, in a statement to the committee, said, "We urge that the increasing scale of taxes, which the Tydings-McDuffie Act will levy against Philippine sugar be maintained."

We also urge that after independence the full rate of duty be made immediately applicable to all Philippine sugar.

On the opposite side of the question to the powerful sugar interests in Congress was expected to be found Representatives from industrial and export and import districts of the

SANCTUARY

Hongkong, as a haven of refuge for the distressed in these troubled times, is, though faced with a serious outbreak of cholera, happy to be of service to those who have been forced out of their homes in consequence of the bringing of Shanghai into the Sino-Japanese war zone. Here in the security of this British Colony, we can have very little conception of the strain and suffering to which these Shanghai people now coming here by the thousand have been subjected. One arrival summed up the position by saying that their experiences can only be compared to those obtaining in the front-line during the Great War. Certain it is that those who have managed to seek sanctuary here will never forget what they have undergone. Their appreciation of the peace and quietude which they can now enjoy will be thrown into relief by the terrors from which they are now free. There are others left behind for whom keen concern will naturally be felt; Hongkong joins with those whose relatives are still in the danger-zone in the prayer that they may have a happy issue out of all their troubles. The Colony is glad to be able to do what it can not only for the Britons who have come here, but also for those of all nationalities. The influx of such a huge number of people naturally creates a wholly abnormal situation, one such as the Colony has never had to face before. There is, we are glad to feel, evidence of a general spirit of hearty co-operation in the heavy task which has been thrown on the community and its essential services. All are anxious to unite in the work of mercy which the whole Colony has been called up to assume. At the beginning, there may be defects in the organisation which has been hurriedly devised to cope with the situation, but these will doubtless be remedied as experience is gained, and we may rest assured that those who have come into our midst will be tolerant of any short-comings that may reveal themselves during the first few weeks of their stay. # Seven-Year-Old Margaret Rose is Dignified Witty Musical Mechanical Lovable

PRINCESS MARGARET ROSE, younger daughter of the King and Queen, is seven years old to-day.

"Our Princess," as she is called in Scotland, will spend her birthday at her birthplace, Glamis Castle.

This is how her happy day will be occupied. In the morning she will receive her presents and afterwards pay calls with her mother, for Princess Margaret Rose has a strongly developed social sense.

The afternoon treat will be a picnic-tea on a neighbouring beach. Her companions at the picnic will be Princess Elizabeth, "Nurse," and Yorkie their pet terrier.

One of the last things the King did before leaving for his holiday was to order a present to be sent to his daughter at Glamis. Queen Mary will give her a work-basket.

Surprises

Not a present to be opened before breakfast is the only rule enforced on birthdays in the household. Princess Margaret Rose is an excitable child and Queen Elizabeth knows that prunes and cereal might be pushed impatiently away once a little girl caught sight of all the birthday packages arranged on a table in her mother's room.

There are surprises among these packages. One is a lovely length of tweed for Princess Margaret Rose's winter coat. It has been specially woven for her—a reddish gold to suit her colouring.

WHAT KIND OF A CHILD IS MARGARET ROSE? SHE IS A DARLING.

Merry, witty, with a dash of devilment. She makes up stories and is a ready imitator. She is entirely unconscious of her position.

Both her parents are determined that this clever little girl shall not be spoiled. That is why few stories about her have ever appeared in newspapers.

She speaks beautifully. Baby talk has always been discouraged in the nurseries. Nicknames are taboo. When quite a baby Princess Margaret Rose called her parents Father and Mother and her sister by her beautiful name—Elizabeth.

Milliners and dressmakers all want the honour of dressing the little princesses.

Princess Margaret Rose is the pet customer because she is never bored by fittings, and when Elizabeth's feet begin to clear soprano voice. She has her own piano and takes her five-finger exercises seriously.

PRINCESS MARGARET ROSE IS MUSICAL AND HAS A CHARMING

Dancing is her great joy, and she will drop the prettiest good-night curtsy to her mother's friends.

She is real blonde and her soft hair is brushed night and morning to encourage the natural curl. She has her mother's dark blue eyes and well-defined eyebrows and her lively intelligent expression.

Princess Elizabeth is happiest in a jersey and skirt. Princess Margaret Rose loves a dress of soft yellow or blue silk.

They only wear hats on special occasions. White socks and gloves and sturdy brown shoes complete their every day outfit.

Devoted Friends

Princess Elizabeth delights in a romp with her friends. Princess Margaret Rose, with her air of quiet detached amusement, prefers to play on her own. But she can be most amusing at parties, and the friends she does make are devoted to her.

She is mechanically minded like her father, and loves something that "goes," such as her electrically propelled motor-car and her toy cycle. She is not interested in dolls.

An independent little girl who does not copy her elders, but devises her own way of doing things.

PRINCESS ELIZABETH HAS A VIVID INTEREST IN LIFE, IN PEOPLE, IN things. Margaret's interest must be caught and held.

Ponies and dogs do not mean so much to her as her piano, and "Uncle George" (the Duke of Kent) is a favourite uncle because he will sit down at her own miniature piano and play to her.

Both the little princesses are healthy children and have hearty appetites.

Breakfast consists of egg, milk, cereal, and fruit.

Lunch is a hearty meal, and the birthday one will be her favourite—chicken, fruit, and ice-cream.

For tea they have milk, bread and butter, home-made jam and cakes. And, of course, there will be a pink-and-white birthday cake on Friday.

Cake Joke

Sometimes the cakes are made by Princess Elizabeth on her own cooking stove, and then little Margaret will wrinkle up her nose and tease her more practical sister by dropping a cake on the floor and pretending it's as hard as the stones on the beach. Elizabeth's protests will evoke screams of laughter until "nurse" intervenes.

THERE ARE NURSERY QUARRELS, OF COURSE. A STORY IS TOLD OF how Margaret Rose in mischievous mood put salt in her sister's tea and tapoca in the bath.

But they always kiss-and-be-friends before bedtime.

An August child is Margaret Rose.

Mercurial. Lovable. Artistic. Intensely interesting. "She's gifted," says her nurse, with pride.

FATE FROM HOLY WRIT

FORTUNE-TELLING has always been a favourite diversion amongst those who do not take a pack of cards or a book on magic too seriously, and the pastime is as old as the hills. To-day, a book on the subject may be borrowed from any library, but few would dream of paying any serious attention to its portents, prophecies, or warnings.

A hundred years ago such things were regarded with a great deal less incredulity. Quite sensible people allowed their actions to be shaped by passing events, and in an age when books were scarce and playing cards were expensive, it was common to have recourse, sometimes even daily, to the family Bible, which formed the sole literature of all but well-to-do households.

In the eighteenth century there was a regular epidemic of "Bible-cutting," and this epidemic itself was only a recurrence of others. The poorer people commonly used a knife of the thin-bladed variety or a long needle. For those who could afford it, there was a special implement, manufactured and sold for the purpose, and often blessed by a Bishop or some lesser dignitary of the Church.

Startling Results

This "tool" consisted of a flat and very thin blade joined to a handle upon which was a knob. The blade was first inserted into the pages of the Bible. (The user being blind-folded), and then upon the knob being pressed, a tiny prickler sprang out and was pressed into the actual verse to be read. Otherwise it was customary to select that verse against which the point of the ordinary knife or needle might rest.

Needless to say, the results of this haphazard method of prophecy were sometimes startling. It is recorded that upon one occasion, Queen Elizabeth, consulting Burleigh about the Spanish envoys, chose "Bible-cutting" rather than her Minister's advice and turned up Ezekiel xxiii, verse 26. It is not on record whether this verse, or other counsels, brought about the abrupt dismissal of the emissaries.

Oliver Cromwell used the practice frequently, and both he and his associates were wont to place implicit faith in the result of such seeking. The historian who relates the fact, adds drily that Oliver was an artful disputer, well able to fit the verse selected to his own desires. There is testimony that when first inquiring as to his own destiny, he was "greatly strengthened" on picking Jeremiah i, verse 10—"See, I have this day set thee over the nations and over the kingdoms, to root out, and to pull down, and to destroy, and to throw down, to build, and to plant."

On the Contrary

Upon another occasion thereafter he "pricked" the same prophet at a gloomy man, after his own heart) in chapter xxxvi, verse 20—"His dead body shall be cast out in the day to the heat, and in the night to the frost."

Although consulting his own horoscope, he chose to apply the passage to his false Monarch. Strangely enough, however, it was of himself, and not of the unhappy Charles, that later on the words proved true.

It is to a former secretary and sly chronicler of one of James II's insurgent Bishops that we owe a good story. The King was induced one day to "prick," and drew up his lot a text from Malachi's second chapter—"And now, O ye priests, I will even send a curse upon you!"

The day when a text was commonly used (since all "knew their Bibles") to illustrate a meaning or, more particularly, to convey a message, has now gone by. I cannot, however, help relating a story attributed to a famous cricketing parson of the last decade.

Unwilling to attend his nephew's marriage to a divorcee, he yet felt it incumbent upon him to convey good wishes, and accordingly telegraphed to the bride a text which, for economy's sake, he dispatched by reference only, the wording of his message being simply, "I John, iv, 18." ("There is no fear in love; perfect love casteth out fear.") Unfortunately the telegraphist omitted the all-important preliminary figure, sending only—"John, iv, 18."

The bride, on turning up the message, was horrified to read—"For thou hast had five husbands, and he whom thou now hast is not thy husband!"

BULLS AND INNERS

From the Office Butts

Hongkong is certainly a hospitable place, as the Shanghai lady said when she saw a lorry dashing through the town bearing the words: "Hop On."

A schoolmaster says slang corrupts the beauty of the English language. But isn't most of the damage done by golf?

Modern transport facilities are said to be dulling the powers of observation. Quite true; lots of motorists don't even notice the pedestrians in front of them.

A speaker recently asserted that if he wants to know the people, an M.P.'s place is in the pub. Along with the other mugs, we suppose.

The B.B.C. has cut down the number of crooning choruses. Well, we shan't be cut up about it.

It's predicted that in course of time all transport will be on the underground tube system. A boring prospect.

In one town at Home, roads are being marked off in three different colours, as an experiment in traffic safety. Motorists will do well to keep in the pink.

The High Commissioner for Australia recently declared that the British are the salt of the earth. He might have added that although we're generally as keen as mustard, we're also a bit peppery at times.

THE CHILDREN'S CORNER

Dear Kiddies,

I was delighted with all the entries sent in for last week's competition. It was, of course, quite easy to complete the drawing, as all the numbers were given, but what surprised me most was the excellent coloring of the sketch. I should say that Hongkong kiddies are as good, if not better, than children elsewhere in the clever use of paints and crayons. Even the Juniors did splendid work.

With such excellent entries and such keen competition, it was not easy picking out the winners. But what I did was to sort out the very best and then go over these several times before making my final choice. Taking age and good work into account, I have decided to award the Senior prize to Peggy Harkon (aged 13), c/o The Treasury; and the Junior prize to Joan Gulnagham (aged 9), 71 Wengneichong Road.

Will the winners call at the "Telegraph" office for their prizes?

The Merit Certificates are awarded to those whose entries were specially set aside as being really good, excepting, of course, the winners. They go to the following:

Seniors: Pamela Ho, Maggie Alves, Nuno Eca, Margie Xavier, Wong Chiu-yung, Yeung Kit-wa.

Juniors: Lu Po-chiu, Tootsie Garcia, Violeta dos Remedios, Dennis H. Ahlong, Dorothy Revie, Norma Clark.

Commended for good work, but not quite up to Merit Certificate standard, are the following:

Seniors: Ann Mansfield, Alan Cutcher, Fernando Alves, Alicia da Silva, Vivian Pomeroy, Elizabeth Jones, Cyril Griffith, Suen Mo-tak, Ines Soares, Denny Macsahil, Eva Grady, Peter Venables, Cecilia Remedios, George Hudson, Ko Mui-ling, Ho Man-ghan, Lo Pui-yew, Jean Grady, Roy Pengelly, Nella Mac-William, Betty Wadmore, Jean Kempton, Freda Stephens.

Now, children, for this week's competition I've got something which is not too hard and which I am sure you will all like. Study the sketch, and fill in the numbered spaces in the middle with the initial letters of the pictures. If you do one for children from 10 to 14, and that correctly you will finish with a word for those under 10. Address perfect word square; that is, one in your entries to Uncle Eddie, c/o

WHO IS THIS? HOW TO DO IT

TWO sets are given. In each you can score 100. If you can identify the person described by the time you have read the first paragraph you score full marks; by the second 75; by the last 50. If you don't know, turn to Page Three for the answers.

ONE of the most popular authors of the day. Feature of his career his sensational rise—almost overnight—from comparative obscurity as a critic to fame, and fortune. His reputation built up on his novels, but he has also had considerable success as a playwright.

BORN in Yorkshire 43 years ago, educated at Cambridge; served throughout the war in the Army. Between 1922 and 1928 published several volumes of literary criticism, including studies of Meredith and Peacock. In 1929 published long "picaresque" novel which achieved immediate success; subsequently adapted for both stage and screen. Subsequent novels, though different in their setting, have been distinguished by the same power of invention, interest in—and capacity to delineate—character and unflagging curiosity concerning the conduct of human affairs.

HIS "English Journey" was a brilliant survey of current social conditions. His outlook is temperate, humane—a determined challenge to humbug and oppression. Who is he?

THIS lady has long been nationally famous, not only for her activities as a legislator and social reformer, but for her wit, outspokenness and determination. "I wish I had his ability and he had my courage," she said, recently of a Cabinet Minister. The most admirably summarises her attitude to public life.

SHE was born in America; married in 1906 to a man well known in English public life. He, like her, has taken an active part in politics. She threw herself keenly into the movement for enfranchising women; was returned to Parliament just after the war and has represented her constituency ever since. Her directness of speech and forthright opinions have often involved her in "incidents" in the House, but these exchanges have not affected her personal popularity.

HERSELF a wealthy woman, she has at times severely criticised the wage-earner. An out-spoken advocate of temperance, nursery schools, extended health services. It is not unlikely that she should have been the first woman to take her seat in the Imperial Parliament. Who is she?

A FAMOUS sculptor, yet one of the most misunderstood artists of the day. Profoundly original both in invention and in technique. Long the centre of controversies (engineered mainly by those who admittedly cannot appreciate his point of view). Yet he himself does not care about controversy, consistently maintaining that his work must be allowed to speak for itself.

BORN in New York. Studied in Paris. Has long been resident in London. His first important public work decoration of B.M.A. building in the Strand. Later produced memorial in Hyde Park to a distinguished naturalist and decorative figures for London Underground headquarters. Both these sculptures much admired by artists; attacked by the man-in-the-street as "ugly."

MORE recently, controversy aroused by figure of "Greece." Much of the sculptor's best work has been put into portrait busts. Among others who have sat to him are Dr. Einstein, Dr. Weizmann, Mr. Ramsay, MacDonald, Mr. Bernard Shaw. These disfigure a genius for modelling which—what- ever may be thought of his imaginative compositions—is universally recognised. Who is he?

Hearts are trumps. South leads, and North-South must win six of the seven tricks.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM NO. 20

South leads the ten of hearts. West may win or play low. If West refuses to win South plays the nine and West may win. He must lead the diamond for South to ruff. South then wins with his top trump and the lead of his spade ensures the winning of the king of spades and the ace of clubs or two club tricks by "end" play according to whether West ruffs the spade lead.

If West wins at trick one, he must still return the diamond and South ruffs. Then South wins with two good trumps and the spade is led and again West is helpless.

South's wrong play would be for South to open with the king of hearts. If he does so and follows with the ten West will duck that trick. South will then have to shift to a spade which West will ruff. West will win, with his good trump and get out of his hand with the diamond lead, after which he must win with his king of diamonds also. In this line of play West must not make the mistake of winning the second lead or South would succeed by play similar to the first solution above.

On the whole, this problem was found easy. Yet I was surprised at the number who fell into the trap of making South open with his king of hearts, and a number who gave the correct play gave this unsound opening as a variation. Opening with the ace of clubs also fails. Correct solutions from "Emjay," G.A.C., Mrs. A. K., R. U. R., Mrs. M.

ALIBI BILLIE

WHAT WAS BILLIE'S ONE MISTAKE?

Mike O'Connell had rigged up a "cast-iron" alibi for her. Her disguise was perfect. But Playfair got her in the end.

BILLIE GERTLING rather enjoyed being a criminal. It was amusing—much more amusing than the second row of the chorus—and also it was lucrative.

The last job she had done for Mike O'Connell had brought her in sixty quid. Sixty quid—just for acting for one evening, the part of a cloak-room attendant!

And last night's show, pondered Billie, as she climbed the steps leading to her flat, promised to be nearly as profitable.

Very few people knew what Billie Gertling looked like, because she was generally disguised as someone else.

This morning, for instance, though the flat she was now entering was her own, she was not supposed to be Billie Gertling. That lady, in accordance with Mike O'Connell's plans, was presumed to be 200 miles away.

Mike had rigged up a "cast-iron" alibi. Biddy O'Connell, Mike's sister—who was very much like Billie to look at—had arrived at Market Templar, in Cheshire, the afternoon before.

Her assignment was an easy one. She had to play the part of Billie Gertling until that lady herself arrived.

And meanwhile Billie was visiting her own flat in the role of "daddy help." It was essential she should look in there, to collect some clothes and to ring up Mike O'Connell.

That part of the plot had been carefully worked out too. "My usual woman's away," Billie had told the porter.

"I've arranged for a girl from Kilburn to take her place. She's got my key; if she wants any help you'll give it her."

And here she was, the "girl from Kilburn" letting herself in after a successful night's work. She was wearing a straw hat, an old brown coat, and a pair of shabby cotton gloves.

These last were not only part of her disguise; they were also an element in her alibi. If the police raided her flat—as, once last night's thefts were discovered, they were very likely to do—no fingerprints would be discovered but her own; it might therefore be useful to have some prima facie explanation as to why the "girl from Kilburn" had left none.

"When you're supposed to be someone else, be someone else; otherwise you'll blunder." That was one of Mike O'Connell's maxims. Though no one had seen her come upstairs, Billie was taking no chances.

"For the next hour," she said to herself, "my role is that of a charwoman." She began then by taking in the dustbin, which had been dumped outside the door. Next, rapidly but efficiently, she put the flat to rights. In little more time than a professional "char" would have taken, she had the whole place spick and span.

By now it was nearly ten o'clock and Billie, who had been up all night, was ravenous. A snack, she said to herself, is clearly indicated.

In herarder were bread and butter, eggs, cold ham. Feeling off her gloves, she cut herself a slice of ham, boiled a couple of eggs, made herself a pot of tea.

"And now," thought Billie, having washed up and put away her utensils, "now the fun is really beginning. I'll just ring up Mike and tell him everything's okay, and then, hey for the open road and Market Templar!"

This was at 10.30. At about the same hour, Joshua Playfair, hastily summoned to a conference at a big house in Belgrave, was learning the details of the wholesale robbery in which Billie had been engaged the night before.

And Billie Gertling, already well known at the Yard, was one of these to whom his suspicions had at once turned.

At 10.45 Billie, re-attired in her straw hat, her shabby coat and black gloves, slammed the door of her flat behind her. She had seen and spoken to nobody.

At eleven, Playfair arrived with a search-warrant.

By that time Billie, at the wheel of a sports car, was tearing along the Watford by-pass.

At three o'clock she reached Market Templar where, in the privacy of a front-floor sitting-room, she exchanged clothes with Biddy O'Connell.

Biddy, in the role of Billie Gertling, had played her part to perfection.

"They've seen me good and plenty," she told Billie, "and with this make-up we're as like as two peas. But hardly a word have I spoken to them. The alibi can't fail, darling."

"Can't" is a big word. Shortly before midnight Joshua Playfair arrested Billie Gertling, at the Market Templar address she had left behind her, on a charge of being concerned in a wholesale theft of jewellery.

No one had spotted her the night before; no one had given her away. But, as the sentimental Inspector was at pains to explain to Sergeant Dumbell, the arm of the law is a long one.

"Billie made one mistake, Dumbell," Playfair said, in summing-up the case, "and in her profession, one mistake is one too many. She's got three years now to think it over. 'A courageous soul, Dumbell; and the loyal helper that Mike O'Connell ever had.' What was Billie's one mistake? (Solutions on Page Three.)

WEEK-END PROBLEMS BY HUBERT PHILLIPS

PROBLEM I

THE BILLIARDS MATCH

Redd and White, two keen billiards players, played a match of four games. In skill there was nothing to choose between them. But Redd, who was both well-to-do and conceited, offered to bet White £2 to £1 that he (Redd) would win the first game; £4 to £2 that he would win the second; £8 to £4 that he would win the third; and £16 to £8 that he would win the fourth. White accepted this offer.

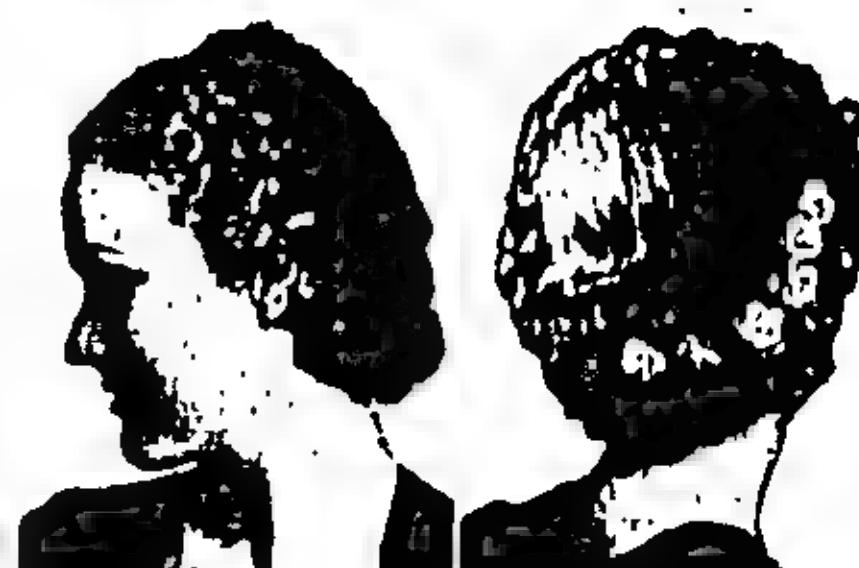

His acceptance meant, as a mathematically minded friend pointed out, that White started the match with a calculable "expectation" of gain. He actually won exactly double his "expectation." Which games were won by Redd?

T. PAUL GREGORY DESCRIBES—The

STRANGE RITES OF CHINESE MOURNING

DEATH IS THE MOST IMPORTANT PHASE OF LIFE

AMONGST all nations and peoples, the advent of the grim Reaper is met with kindred manifestations of grief and expressions of poignant sorrow and regret. It is an occasion when the entire energies of the friends and relatives of the deceased are devoted to the proper fulfilment of the diverse customs and attendant religious rites which mankind has deemed appropriate and fitting; for, after all, is not this metamorphosis which men fear want of a better name term death, nothing more than a rebirth into another, and perchance happier and fuller existence?

The Chinese as other nations have their own peculiar burial customs, which because of the antiquity are of unusual interest, especially as they are carried out today in practically the same manner as they have been for centuries past.

Indeed, the funeral customs of the inhabitants of the Middle Kingdom are amongst the most elaborate extant, and cogently illustrate the innate faith and the supreme confidence that this remarkable people have in a future life beyond this world. These practical, utilitarian pragmatism and their deep sense of filial piety have taught them that the spirits of the departed are not in some distant purgatory or hypothetical heaven, but in some vivid world of reality not far removed from this earth, where they still hold in mortal main their fields and houses, and with tender and loving care look after the welfare of their posterity. Therefore, so it is firmly believed by the masses of the Chinese people, he who is faithful and regular in paying his respects to the names of his departed ancestors will surely reap an ample reward.

It is for this reason that the Sons of Han devote so much attention to the care of their dead, for in the Chinese conception, there are only three truly important events in a man's life, viz. birth, marriage and death, of which the last is the greatest and most important of all.

THE approach of mortal dissolution is in many of the old-fashioned Chinese homes, the signal for the summoning of the officiating Buddhist priests or else the sable-clad Taoist exorcisers or both who intone the prescribed prayers for the passing of the soul, in order that the way to the other world may be prepared; therefore this ceremony is quite appropriately termed, ho-lo or "opening the way."

Then after the soul has been escorted on its journey to the other world, the sorrowing relatives prepare the corpse for burial. In the mourning customs commonly observed throughout southern China, before the corpse is put into the coffin, the eldest son or next of kin of the deceased proceeds to the nearest stream or pond bearing in his hand a dish covered with a palm-leaf fan and containing a couple of coppers. Upon arriving at the place he throws the fan and the coins into the water, and then kneeling at the edge of the stream or pond, dips up with the basin a small quantity of water, making all the while a great wailing and display of grief. The basin containing the water he immediately covers with a handkerchief and returns homeward, crying as he goes. Upon arriving home, the next of kin uses the water in the ceremony of washing the corpse.

Like the devout Hebrew who prepares his kittel or white shroud for many seasons in advance, the Chinese gives orders that his shau-yi or "longevity clothes" should be carefully sewn and made ready. There is, however, some difference in the shrouds of the faithful Jew and of a Child of Cathay, inasmuch as that of the former is generally a single piece of plain white cloth whilst the shau-yi or "longevity clothes" of the Chinese consist of seven garments, four for the upper part of the body, and three for the lower. The upper garments consist of the tai-sham or underwear, the kam-nang or double, the min-naap or cotton-padded tunic and the po-ka or surplice. The lower garments consist of the tai-foo or underdrawers, the min-foo or cotton-padded trousers and finally the shuk-chai-kw'an or silken upon representing official rank.

THE coffin is generally chosen with great care, and in case of wealthy families, is of expensive construction and of the finest woods. Indeed, in many of the more old-fashioned families the coffin has been often selected during lifetime, and kept ready for the final episode.

The Chinese like that other remarkable people, the Children of Israel, lay much stress upon the number seven, and in the funeral ceremonies this numeral plays an important part. The first forty-nine days after death is popularly represented as the time when the spirit of the departed is striving to arrive at its final destination. This period of forty-nine days is commonly known as the Ts'ai-tsai or "seven sevens," because it is divided into each of seven weeks of seven days each. At the end of each sequence, a series of seven weeks of seven days each, are burned, so that the spirit may not get naked during the long journey, and food is offered so that it, too, will not suffer the pangs of hunger.

At the first, third, and fifth hebdomadal periods, the family of the deceased have the custom of cooking a peculiar kind of rice known as shau-jaan or "longevity rice." It is interesting to note that the fuel for the preparation of this meal is the shavings left in the manufacture of coffins. So important, however, is the cooking of this special menu of rice that the mourning family deem it incumbent to bring home two baskets of these shavings, which bear the name of kwon-ts'ol-ch'ai or "coffin kindling."

During the period of mourning, two white lanterns with inscriptions in blue ideographs are hung outside the house, and upon the completion of the 49 day period are taken down and burnt.

Until the coffin is removed from the home, there is an interesting parallel to the Hebrew custom of shiv'a, inasmuch as that no member of the mourning family may bathe, or perform any act of personal cleanliness. Moreover, no food may be cooked in the house so that the friends and neighbours see to it that the family is provided for.

EVERY European resident in the Colony is largely familiar with the poignant-like funeral processions of the Chinese as they wind their colourful way through the streets.

Although the greater part of the funerals of the wealthier classes of Chinese in Hongkong are exceedingly elaborate it is in the old city of Canton where processions of this kind are to be seen in all their glory.

The average funeral there is a symphony in blue and white and gold and scarlet. Sometimes, at the head of the procession, beggars hired for the occasion push huge papier-mache lions, mounted on small wooden wheels, and gaudy in reds and celadine blues. Thence follows a variegated medley of pichamps or floats carried by lusty mendicants. These floats are strange, grotesque and bizarre, representing in mimic some historical figure of the past who for the greatness of his achievements has been admitted to the popular pantheon of deified worthies. Amongst these are the paper-mache figures of Yuen Chai, the so-called "God of Literature," He is generally represented as standing with one foot on the head of a monster and holding a pen in his outstretched hand. His form is slender and he is dressed in flowing robes. Again, no funeral procession is deemed complete without the presence of the images of that trio of worthies mentioned in the oft-quoted Chinese book, the Sai-yau-kei or "Travels to the West" which relates the story of a certain Master who went to India in quest of the Buddhist Sacred Books. Three of these characters have become identified with popular tradition and have attained an undying fame which has relegated them to the positions of prominent figures in the Chinese funeral processions. The first of these worthies is Suen Ng-hung who is said to have been developed by natural evolution out of a stone, and who began life as a monkey, and hence, is popularly designated as Suen Hwang or the "Monkey God." This deity is symbolical of the untamable restlessness of the human heart. The next character who is frequently seen in funeral processions is Shin Ng-tsing, who is represented as a black-faced individual bearing over his shoulder the book of the "God of Literature," and his very name typifies the passive side of man's nature. The remaining member of this trio, Chue Ng-nang or Chue Pant-kai, is perhaps the best known of all. He represents the animal instincts of human nature. His surname which signifies a "pig" indicates that his characteristics were those of the porcine species, and in the representations of him, he is depicted with the head of a swine.

There are, of course, other floats typifying lesser divinities, and perhaps one or more Western bands. Finally, at the rear comes the coffin borne by eight or as many as 16 or 32 porters dressed in white jackets and trousers trimmed with blue, followed by the principal mourner in hempen garments, who are shielded from the gaze of the public by means of a white cloth screen termed the haau-wei or "curtain of filial piety" which is held over them by a number of lackeys or serving-men.

THE music, too, is strange. There is the doleful wailing of Chinese horns, and the pulsating melody of Western bands. To foreign ears the music of the latter particularly in Canton is perhaps incongruous, for they do not usually play funeral marches nor threnodic dirges but bare out the sparkling, throbbing melodies of old familiar tunes—Marching through Georgia, Seeing Nellie Home, Ta-ra, boom de Aye and that old-time hit—"Where did you get that hat?"

Indeed, to the kindly Chinese mind, such music is entirely fitting, for the dead, being in a sphere near the world, enjoy the gay things of this life, almost as much as if they themselves were present.

ANOTHER phase of Chinese customs and at the same time most interesting and unusual is that which is known as chop-kam or "picking up the gold," and is connected with the practice of exhuming the corpse of the deceased seven years after burial. This is for the purpose of placing the bones in clay pots or urns which are then deposited in a prepared site selected and previously approved by a fung-shui-shaang or professional geomancer.

The object of such an exhumation is for the avowed purpose of gaining merit for the descendants of the deceased. It is with this end in view that the Chinese dislodge the coffin and after prising off the lid, carefully remove the bones. These are then carefully scraped to remove any possible adhering flesh and then after being washed and deposited with scrupulous care in the taap or large clay urn.

The bones of the feet and limbs are placed first, and then the other bones are placed in proper order so that the final collection of Death's grim trophies will represent a skeleton with its knees drawn up as in a person squinting. The jar with its contents is designated by the Chinese as a kam-tai or "gold urn" and is now ready for transportation to the site approved by the geomancer.

THE Chinese have also the strange custom of interring jade ornaments—rings, bracelets, etc. with their dead, which are, of course, recovered when the period of seven years is completed, and the coffin disinterred. Jade which has been recovered from graves is known by the Chinese as Kwong-puk or "old jade" whilst by foreigners the general designation is "Tomb Jade." Indeed, jade buried with the dead is extremely precious and highly esteemed by Chinese virtuosos, as such pieces of semi-precious stone through long contact with the awful hideousness of Death have changed colour, and have acquired marvellous hues of red, brown, black and grey. So highly prized are these pieces, that forgeries are numerous, unscrupulous individuals attempting to simulate by artificial means the wondrous tints that only a macabre association with the decaying corpse can impart. In fact, the bulk of the pieces of tomb jade offered for sale in the open market are prepared by artificial means. One of the favourite ways is to bury a number of specimens of ordinary green jade with an animal body with a liberal application of lime. It is said that after a few years jade will appear identical with those which were buried with a human corpse. Those unscrupulous persons who cannot afford to wait for five years or more attempt to use selected pieces by chemical means, one of the favourite processes being to boil ordinary white jade in ground-nut oil. Another method is to heat pieces of jade over a charcoal fire in order that they may acquire the peculiar dull brown appearance that is so much esteemed by Chinese connoisseurs.

ONE may wonder what becomes of the old coffins which being constructed of heavy planks of selected hard-wood are enabled to withstand

By F. W. THOMAS

FOR years my neighbour Wimbley has been a martyr to lumbago, neuritis, water-on-the-knee, indigestion, loss of appetite and fullness after meals.

And for years I have been a martyr to my neighbour Wimbley.

He tells me all about everything. How he felt yesterday, how he feels to-day and how he expects to feel to-morrow.

How the pain came on just here, and then went right down there, and across there; and how he could have screamed.

Yesterday afternoon I called on him to see if I could borrow my Dutch heel for a few minutes. I didn't really want the thing, but I like to have a look at it every now and again, just to see how it's going on.

Wimbley was down at the far end of his garden, sitting on an upturned bucket with his head in his hands.

The doctor, he said, had advised him to take more exercise in the open air; so he had decided to pull a few radishes.

"But it's frightfully difficult," he said. "I'm supposed to take exercise for my neuritis, and to stay quietly indoors for my indigestion. And as I've got both—"

"I wonder," he mused, "if one could grow radishes in the drawing-room." But that wasn't Wimbley's real trouble. Wimbley's real trouble was Amelia, otherwise Mrs. Wimbley.

Amelia had gone to town for the day. There was a sale of hats at Duck and Diddens. Fourteen shilling hats going for thirteen and eleven three-farthings. And as the fare was only half-a-crown and Amelia would want but a very cheap lunch, she had gone up to buy one of these hats and thus save a whole lot of money.

"And I know she'll go to the pictures and lose her return ticket," said Wimbley. "She always does."

He stifly, with groans and creakings, and managed to pull another radish, making seven in all. "That's not the worst of it," he said. "Before she went she told me to be sure and do something, and I can't think what it was. And if I don't do it—"

"It was something I was to be sure and do, and she told me eleven times. But I've got so many things to think of."

"There's the medicine for my stomach every three hours, and there's the stuff for my neuritis, and the other stuff for my kidneys, and the tablets for my lumbago; and what with one thing and another—"

"But I do wish I could remember what it was," he sighed. "She'll make such a fuss, and that sort of thing's frightfully bad for my blood pressure."

"It was something to do with something in the house, and I fancy it began with an R."

"Radishes," I suggested, but Wimbley shook his head. "Then what about radishers. Perhaps she's short of radishers, radiant heat, rubber bath-mats, ripe raspberries and rhinoceri."

Wimbley shook his head till I could have heard the contents rattle. "No," he said. "I'm pretty sure it wasn't rhinoceri. But I feel certain it began with an R. Or was it a W? Dear, dear, dear! And all this worrying is so bad for my indigestion, water-on-the-knee, neuritis and blood-pressure."

"Well, let's try W," I said. "Did she want you to do the washing? Or clean the windows? Or wind the clock, whitewash the scullery, whip the cream, warm the cold mutton, weed the garden, water the radishes, or wet your whistle?"

No, it was none of these. But it was something. And if he didn't remember what it was there'd be trouble for two. Because Amelia, I understand, was once water-weight champion of the Cliggham Troop of Girl Guides, and she's grown quite a lot since then. Both upwards and outwards.

Always eager to help, I tried some more W's, such as wireworms, witchcraft, woodwork, wool-gathering and worrying. But Wimbley begged me to shut up.

He said I made his head go round and round, but that wasn't true, because he was holding it still. He said all those old words were very bad for his inside and gave him a pain in his vocabulary.

And it wasn't wrestling or wayzgooses of willy-nilly or wireless. Further, if I couldn't help I was not to hinder, and would I please go light away, because I was annoying his water-on-the-brain.

But I hate to see a fellow creature suffer. So I fetched another bucket and sat down beside Wimbley. I would stand by him, I said, right to the end. Or at least until I heard Amelia come in, when I should have to go.

"And that's not the worst of it," sighed Wimbley. "I've forgotten to take my tablets after lunch, and I'm three pills behind schedule, and two doses of pink stuff in arrears, and my lumbago doesn't feel so good as it did."

"But if only I could remember. I distinctly heard her say, 'Now don't forget to so-an-so,' but what it was—Don't forget to what? Don't forget to, don't forget to, don't forget to."

Wimbley jumped up from his bucket, and at first I thought he was going to kick that receptacle for good and all.

He knote his brow. A wisp of a smile lit up his furrowed face. The corrugations went from his forehead as if they had been rubbed out.

"I've got it!" he said. "I remember now. It doesn't begin with W, after all. I was right first time. It's an R. She told me to be sure and remember to ring up the telephone people and tell them that our instrument was out of order."

And he dashed indoors to do it. So far as I know he's still doing it poor chap.

SOLUTION

Billie's mistake was to leave behind her, in her flat, the remains of two freshly boiled eggs, on the shells of which her finger-prints were clearly discernible.

"Don't scold him, Mrs. Hardy. He doesn't look well. Are you sure he is not constipated? Whenever a child is cross and peevish, I look at the tongue. If it is coated, or if the breath is disagreeable, I know at once that it is wrong. I always give 'California Syrup of Figs.' That moves the bowels in a few hours and cleanses the system."

"Children don't understand the importance of regularity. They get absorbed in play and won't trouble. And it is only when they get thoroughly cross and miserable that you realize that they are constipated. I find it saves a world of sickness and worry to give them a regular weekly dose. I would do that if I were you. With a natural laxative like 'California Syrup of Figs' you can't go wrong."

"Doctors recommend it and give it to their own children, and we nurses swear by it. Get a bottle of 'California Syrup of Figs' from the drug store and give him a dose at bedtime. He'll be as happy as a lark in the morning."

"Never experiment with cheap and drastic preparations when buying children's laxatives. The safest plan is to do as I do, follow the example of the doctor and give 'California Syrup of Figs.'"

LAW GIVING INCREASING COMPENSATION IN FATAL ACCIDENT CASES

Effect Of Decision By The House Of Lords

AS the result of a decision in the House of Lords several weeks ago, the law regarding the assessment of damages in cases of fatal accidents is shown to have been so unexpectedly and extraordinarily widened that its effects on the ordinary insurances of every citizen are almost incalculable.

The case arose out of a fatal accident to a young woman in Birmingham who was killed in a motor-car accident. Her father claimed damages in respect of the accident.

AMONG OTHER HEADS OF DAMAGES HE HAS BEEN HELD ENTITLED TO CLAIM DAMAGES IN RESPECT OF THE SHORTENING OF THE GIRL'S LIFE BY THE ACCIDENT AS WELL AS THE DAMAGES FOR THE PAIN AND SUFFERING CAUSED TO THE GIRL.

In order to see the full implication of this decision it is necessary to look at the history of the law.

Before 1846 it was held by judges that the value of a life could not be assessed in money. Therefore, if a person was killed by accident, damages could not be recovered as they could not be assessed.

NEW ACT

In order to remedy this, an Act of Parliament was passed in 1846 known as Lord Campbell's Act, which enabled a near relative of the person killed by negligence of some one else to recover damages provided upon the person who had been killed.

It had always been a principle of law that personal actions died with the person; that is to say, if a person has suffered injury or had been killed or had caused suffering or had killed some one else, no action could be brought.

LESSON OF THE SOVIET RECORD FLIGHT

ROUTES OVER THE ARCTIC

BY flying from Moscow to California by way of the North Pole, a non-stop expedition of more than 6,700 miles, M. Gromoff, the Soviet aviator, and his two companions have turned the attention of geographers and aviators to a fascinating set of problems (says the Observer).

Opinions are divided over the significance of the Russian flight and the Soviet researches in Arctic wastes, and, without minimising the excellence of the individual achievement, there are those who regard M. Gromoff's spectacular crossing over the top of the world as nothing more than a "freak."

LORD SEMPILL'S HOPES

On the other hand, Lord Sempill, whose pioneering in aviation will long be remembered with gratitude, is one of the pro-Arctic school.

"People still have the idea that the Arctic is an interminable kind of waste and a very terrible place of great storms and difficulties," he said. "But when you look at the region in its proper perspective, as a sphere, you find yourself gazing at a small sea, not much greater than the Mediterranean, and certainly not comparable with the Atlantic or Pacific. From the map you see how small, relatively, is the sea, and how desirable it would be to gain time from point to point by cutting across the corners of the Polar regions. This is precisely what these brilliant Russians have accomplished."

DISTANCE HALVED

"By the sub-Arctic route the journey from Great Britain to Tokyo could be halved in point of distance. The Japanese aviator who came here in the Divine Wind covered 10,000 miles. By the sub-Arctic route it should ultimately be possible to send passengers and mail to Tokyo by covering approximately less than half of that distance."

An Imperial Airways official in London described Gromoff's adventure as "a very fine flight, but of no commercial significance."

"Boiling the thing down to essentials," he said, "it just means that the Russians managed to take off with a very heavy load of petrol and kept their engines running."

"This flying in the Polar regions is being very carefully watched. The quickest route to Montreal is by way of Scotland, Iceland, Greenland, and Labrador. On no section does the sea passage exceed more than 400 or 500 miles."

But at present this flight is commercially impracticable. You cannot establish bases without the expenditure of very large sums of money, and for a service to pay it must be maintained all the year round. Though as yet little is known of the conditions in the Arctic, doubtless regular services in the far North will come some day."

One of the last pictures taken of the Rev. Edgar Davidson, the Vicar of Stiffkey, before he was mugged by the lion, which as the picture shows he attempted to tame publicly at Skegness.

BRITAIN NATIONAL THEATRE COMING TO PASS

London, Aug. 4. At last Great Britain is to have a National Theatre. It will be in South Kensington, opposite the Victoria and Albert Museum.

It was announced this week that the Office of Works had accepted the £75,000 tender of the Shakespeare Memorial National Theatre Committee for the site. This announcement came as a surprise, because actually the Committee had given up all hope of securing it. Some few weeks ago arrangements were all complete for the site to be purchased by Harrods, who were, so it was said, designing a great new block of flats. These negotiations, however, fell through at the last moment, and now the site which is now occupied by Nos. 1 to 7 Cromwell Gardens is to become the scene of our first National Theatre.

For 29 years the Committee have been searching for a site for the realisation of their dream. When the scheme was launched 29 years ago Sir Carl Meyer contributed £70,000. The Committee set to work to build the theatre in 1910, but the war intervened. Since then large sums of money have been collected, and the last report showed that the fund contained £153,000.

There will thus be some £70,000 left when the purchase of the site is complete. This will not be sufficient to build the proposed theatre, providing seats for 1,250 people, and a public appeal for further funds to cover this expenditure, also to endow the theatre, will be made.

PLANS DRAWN UP

Preliminary plans for the building have been drawn up, but are not necessarily final. "The idea is," said

Mr. Geoffrey Whitworth, honorary secretary of the National Theatre Committee and founder of the British Drama League, "to run a permanent repertory company which will produce an equal balance of classical, modern and new plays, including translations of modern foreign drama. The prices of seats will not be exorbitant."

Miss Viola Tree, daughter of the late Sir Herbert Tree, who last month created a stir by advocating that part of the National Theatre money should be used to help the Vic-Wells Completion Fund, said, "At the price, the Committee have got a bargain in this site. South Kensington may seem a little of the theatre map, but it is accessible from all over London. The Old Vic and Sadler's Wells have proved conclusively that audiences are perfectly prepared to go further afield than the West End if given the right inducement. It is not generally known that a West End theatre would have been almost impossible financially because by law the trustees were not allowed to buy an existing theatre and take it over intact. If they had bought such a theatre they would have been compelled to raze it to the ground."

In actual fact, it is perhaps a good thing that the Theatre is to be built in South Kensington. It will certainly cause a trend to the West in Theatre-land, and will broaden its scope. It was always said that the Court Theatre in Sloane Square was "off the map," which was given as a reason for its failure. It is more than likely that the National Theatre in Kensington will be the forerunner of other theatres in that area. Many Londoners will be more than pleased at the thought that they will in future times be able to go to a "show" without having to drive or walk through the crowded and usually dingy streets of central London in which all our theatres are now situated.

There is, however, one aspect of the acquisition of this site which up to the present does not seem to have occurred to anybody, and which is going to prove a big obstacle in the way of our National Theatre builders. As has recently been announced, the Great West Road is to be extended to start from almost the very spot on which the Theatre will be built. This means that our greatest roadway out of London will pass the door of the theatre. Thousands of cars an hour passing along the highway outside will hardly be to the benefit of either the performers or the audience in the theatre while the show is going on, to say nothing of the tremendous traffic congestion which will occur at the time of opening and at the end of the performance.

ONLY SOLUTION

The only solution to this problem seems to be the construction of a side road to take the theatre traffic, and no doubt when the plans are complete some such policy will be adopted.

The news altogether has caused a very good impression. As one paper, the News Chronicle, says:

"It is very good news that the Cromwell Gardens site in South Kensington has been secured, after all, for the National Theatre. There is almost universal agreement that this particular site is the best for the purpose. The greater was the indignation when it appeared that it was to be used for commercial purposes. It is satisfactory, however, that the organisers of the National Theatre movement have been able to make the highest offer for this site. It will not now be possible to cast against the theatre which, we hope, will soon be built, that it is founded on the concealed charity of the State."

WOMEN OWN 65 PER CENT. OF U.S. WEALTH

"Time Will Come When They Will Dominate Financial World"

WOMEN own 65 per cent. of the American nation's wealth and are getting a firm grip on the other 35 per cent. Miss Catherine Curtis told the Congress of American Enterprise.

"The time will come," said Miss Curtis, who is a national director of the Women Investors in America, Inc., "when women will dominate the financial world."

She said women took their lead from Queen Isabella of Castile who became the first investor in America when she pawned her jewels so that Columbus might sail to discover a new and mighty land of opportunity.

"Already," she said, "we claim three great and powerful investments in the United States.

Three Great Powers

"First is the financial, which involves the right to own property and invest money for profit and security. Second the physical, which involves the right to enjoy a high standard of living, and third, the spiritual which inspires women in this country to work to retain an economic and political independence which is greater than that of the women of any other country."

$5,000,000,000 IN TAXES

Miss Curtis disclosed results of her organization's first survey of women's financial stake in the United States. Besides owning 65 per cent. of the nation's wealth, she said that women are beneficiaries of 80 per cent. of the $65,000,000 of life insurance policies now in effect, having an average face value of approximately U.S. $15,000 a policy.

FAMILY SAVERS

"We know that women were the savers in the family," she added, "but imagine our surprise to find that 63 per cent. of the savings bank accounts are in the names of women, with the average account amounting to about U.S. $600.

"Approximately 50 per cent. of the building and loan shares are owned by women and women have title to 40 per cent. of the real estate, 50 per cent. of the corporate equities of United States industry, including 44 per cent. of all public utility securities and 48 per cent. of railroad securities."

Women hold 25 per cent. of the nation's jobs, she said, and as taxpayers pay in Federal State and local taxes. They contribute more than U.S. $5,000,000,000.

"You might think a lot about this," Miss Curtis said. "Forty per cent. of the common stockholders and 54 per cent. of the preferred stockholders in a survey of 41 corporations are women." These, she said, do not include stock held jointly by husbands and wives.

"Ours is the greatest stake in private enterprise," she concluded, "and it is our responsibility to protect and preserve it."

U.S. IS READY FOR ANYTHING

Washington. Reorganization of the United States State Department to place it virtually on a war footing reveals this government's uneasiness over the possibility of a European conflict.

Rapidly and with as little publicity as possible, Secretary of State Cordell Hull, has ordered transfers among foreign service officers to gather in the State Department a group of career diplomats noted for their expert knowledge of conditions in countries most likely to be involved in war.

Hull also has reshuffled the geographical divisions within the department to give the experts direct supervision over developments in the suspected trouble centres, without the necessity of coordination between various divisions in the department.

This new line-up will give Hull the advice of key position men fresh from European "listening posts."

Latest of these moves was the appointment of George Messersmith, present minister to Austria, to replace Wilbur J. Carr as Assistant Secretary of State.

Hugh Wilson, for the past several years minister to Switzerland and an expert on the League of Nations, returned home to become Assistant Secretary of State.

G. Howland Shaw, coming to the department as chief of the foreign service personnel, has been counsellor of the embassy at Istanbul since 1930. Placed strategically throughout Europe, the department will have other experts. Carr, after more than 40 years in the department, becomes minister to Czechoslovakia which military experts say is likely to be the centre of important developments.

At Paris is Ambassador William C. Bullitt, considered by State Department heads to be one of the most able United States diplomatic representatives abroad. He is reputed to be closer to President Roosevelt than any other American diplomat.

At London, in addition to Ambassador Robert W. Bingham, is Ray Atherton, veteran foreign service officer with long service in both the Far East and Europe.

William Phillips, former Under-Secretary of State and veteran foreign service officer, is Ambassador at Rome.

VACCINE FOR BUBONIC PLAGUE

Manchukuo's Contribution

(By HENRY WOOD)

San Francisco, Cal.

The soya bean and a perfected vaccine for the bubonic plague promise to be Manchuria's two greatest contributions to civilization for the time being, according to Dr. Kikuo Karauchi, one of the Japanese scientists most responsible for the development of the latter.

When the vaccine has been brought to perfection, Dr. Karauchi declares, it will in the end be the South Manchurian Railway that was responsible for both. It was largely for getting the Manchurian crop of soya beans to the outside world that the South Manchurian Railway was built, he states, and it was the same railway that installed first at Dairen, ten years ago, the laboratories that to-day are steadily solving the problem of the bubonic plague—the greatest scourge of Asia.

Dr. Karauchi is now in the United States for the purpose of checking up on his anti-bubonic serum with various laboratories such as those at the University of California and Harvard, and also of applying it in the western part of the United States where for a number of years past, squirrels and other rodents are known to be affected with the plague. The serum of Dr. Karauchi and his associates in the laboratories of the South Manchurian Railway has already been perfected to such an extent that it has been used on 100,000 people in Manchuria the past year, while during the coming year it is expected to extend the treatment to 300,000.

Simultaneously, it is being used, he states, in Fukien, which is the centre of the plague for China. Reports on the results have been made to the International Health Department of the League of Nations.

While the Hooper Foundation of the University of California reports that a steady increase in rodents infected with the bubonic plague is being found in the western states, it has not as yet been carried to human beings. It is hoped that Dr. Karauchi's experiment on the subject will tend to prevent this. Before leaving for the East he conducted experiments on the subject at the Hooper Foundation here with Dr. Karl F. Meyer, America's leading authority on the bubonic plague.

Dr. Karauchi explains that the present development of his serum is the result of ten years of laboratory work. The first success was the production of a substance that provided protection not against the plague microbe, but against one of its component parts.

Under the system as it is now perfected, the plague microbes are produced in the laboratory in great numbers and then killed so they can cause no infection. The dead microbe is then broken up and from the various fractions of the bacteria, selections are made that produce an immunizing serum.

In this way a serum was first developed that was utilized for immunizing purposes against certain portions of the bacteria only, instead of the entire bacteria itself. The experimental stage passed from that of tests on monkeys and other animals to tests of human beings. A few laboratory workers offered themselves first as "human guinea pigs," then a few civilian volunteers and finally thousands of Manchurians expressed a willingness to be vaccinated. The results were highly satisfactory.

At the present time the serum has been perfected to an extent where

HEADACHES NEARLY DROVE HIM MAD

Now Completely Changed
By Kruschen

After spending some years in the tropics the writer of the following letter returned home suffering from liver trouble, constant headaches, and an unhealthy load of excess fat. Read how he cured his headaches—toned up his liver—and lost 36 lbs. of fat—all with the same remedy—Kruschen Salts:

"I was so stout that my general health was completely undermined. I had constant headaches that almost drove me crazy, and I suffered from a continual feeling of liverishness. I weighed 16 stone 5 lbs. I began to take Kruschen Salts, and, after 10 or 12 days, my whole being was completely changed. My liver does not bother me any more, I feel younger and more active, my headaches are gone. Yesterday, to my great delight, I found that I now weigh only 13 stone 11 lbs."—M.A.L.

Headaches can nearly always be traced to a disordered stomach, and to the unsuspected retention in the system of stagnating waste material. Kruschen Salts removes these poisons—prevents them forming again—and brings swift and lasting relief from headaches.

It offers protection for a period of 14 months. This would necessitate the re-vaccination of the entire Manchurian population or that of China or any other country once a year.

In view of the fact, however, that the mortality rate of the bubonic plague is virtually 100 per cent, Dr. Karauchi believes that this will be worth the while, until science can go still farther. And he is convinced that greater progress can still be made.

Just before leaving Manchuria for his present American trip, Dr. Karauchi and his assistants made their first tests with the new serum as a curative agent rather than as merely an immunizing one. A horse was used for injections until it was believed that its blood had developed a curative serum. The latter was used on three patients who were apparently dying of the plague. One of the three failed to respond to the treatment, but the two others recovered. The serum, he declares, will be used on hundreds of other victims during the next few months until its efficiency can be established or the possibilities of other perfection ascertained.

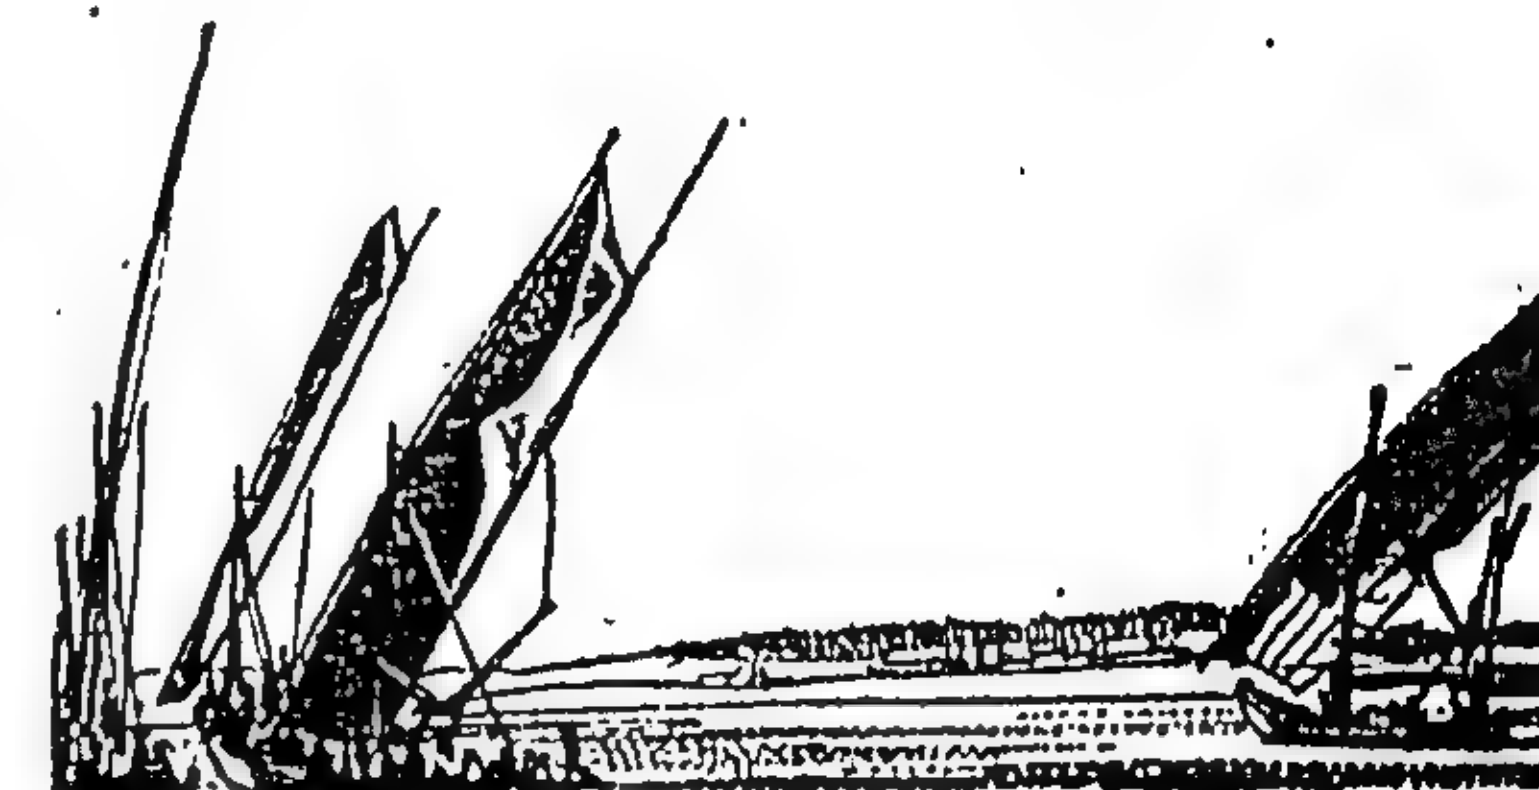

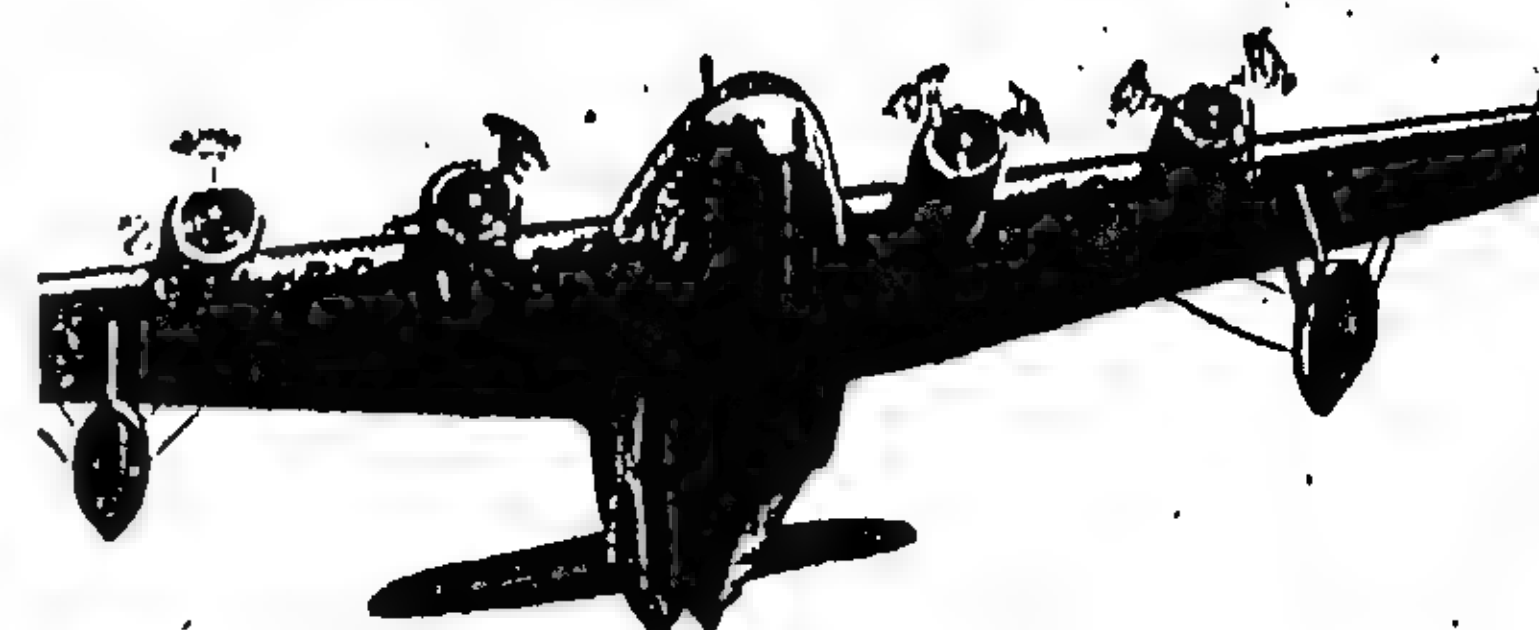

Dr. Karauchi is counting very much on his consultations with leading American scientists during his present American tour to aid in finding a final solution for the plague.

KENT SCORES SMART CRICKET VICTORY AT DOVER

WINS THREE GAMES AMERICAN SUCCESSES WIGHTMAN CUP CONTEST

Forest Hills, Aug. 20. The United States scored victories in the opening matches of the Wightman Cup lawn tennis contest against the British players here today. Miss Alice Marble and Miss Helen Jacobs both winning, in the singles while the Americans took the doubles match.

Miss Alice Marble had a hard fought match against Miss Mary Hardwick and won in three sets after dropping the first. The scores were 4-6, 6-2, 6-4.

Miss Hardwick was three games to four down in the first set and pulled up with brilliant back hand drives. Thereafter the American slowed up her game and the English girl took the set at 6-4.

In the second set Miss Hardwick was over driving and served five double faults. Miss Jacobs won her match against Miss Katherine Stammers by 6-1, 4-6, 6-4. Miss Jacobs was very steady from the baseline while in the first set Miss Stammers played some spectacular shots but was inaccurate. She lost the first two games in the second set but rallied with cross court drives down the side lines and eventually won the set after ten games.

In the third set Miss Jacobs ran away with a 4/1 lead. Miss Stammers stormed the net and volleyed and smashed with Miss Jacobs sticking to the baseline. She pulled up to 4/5 but failed to prevent the American from winning 6-4.

In the doubles match Mrs. Sarah Palfy Fabry and Miss Alice Marble out-generated Miss Mary Deanman and Miss Joan Ingram to win by 6-3, 6-2. America thus leads by three matches on the first day and it would seem that they will accomplish the feat of winning the Davis and Wightman Cups in the same year.—Reuter.

NO INTERPORT

Hongkong Swimmers Miss Their Opportunity

In view of the situation in Shanghai, the Swimming Interport arranged between that port and Hongkong has now been definitely cancelled.

In a letter to Mr. D. F. Lopes, Hon. Secretary of the V.R.C., the Shanghai authorities warned the Hongkong swimmers that the Interport might be cancelled without notice. Now that hostilities have broken out, the Hongkong selectors have taken it for granted that the Interport is off and have cabled Shanghai to this effect.

The contest was arranged to be held in Shanghai, and the Hongkong team was due to leave for the north to-day.

DIXON MAY GIVE UP CAR BID

Freddie Dixon has been seriously considering giving up work on his 2,000 h.p. car with which he hoped to break the world's speed record—The Dart.

He told the Press that he was broken-hearted by the loss of his driving licence after losing his court appeal.

"This also means the suspension of my International Competition Licence, which enables me to race," he said.

"But I have appealed to the R.A.C. to get it back for me.

"If I cannot get back my licence before the two years are up I shall suspend work on The Dart.

"Instead, I shall concentrate on building small racing cars."

(By F. G. Prince-White)

I learned recently the secret of that amazing display of stamina given by G. von Cramm, the German lawn tennis player, in his Davis Cup match with Donald Budge, the United States champion, at Wimbledon.

Fred Dyer, ex-boxer, English physical culture expert, who had von Cramm in hand, told me: "Part of my general treatment was psychological. While massaging him I impressed on him that the will to win is as essential in tennis as in boxing."

"I mentioned to him that boxing matches are mostly won outside the ring—in the training quarters."

"He was quick to grasp my meaning, and the result was that he revealed a totally unexpected reserve of strength and staying-power. If he had kept himself keyed up in the third set as he had done earlier, instead of 'loosening-up,' he would have won."

"He would have done so had he been under my direction for another week. I had him in hand only a week, and that was too short a time."

"Von Cramm and Henkel (the other German player) were not in need of hard physical training."

"Every day for a week I devoted about two hours to giving them—and von Cramm in particular—relaxation exercises and a certain amount of massage in a room at their hotel."

"During the week of his special training, von Cramm dieted, avoided starchy foods and all 'heavy' dishes."

The newly-formed European Bathing Club at Quarry Bay will be officially opened to-day at 3 p.m. Following correspondence in local newspapers asking for a bathing site for Europeans at Quarry Bay, one was granted by Government, and everything is now ready for the opening. Miss A. J. Fisher is Hon. Secretary and Treasurer of the Club.

Wally Hammond, the Gloucestershire and England batsman, who by scoring 52 in the second innings against Kent, completed his 3,000 runs for the season.

WOMAN'S CRICKET AT HOVE

Australians' Escape

The two-day match between South of England and Australia at Hove ended in a draw, but the end was far too thrilling for comfort. When the last over but one was to be bowled the last Australian pair were in.

Eight runs were needed to catch up the England total. There was dead silence round the field. Miss Whelan was bowling to Miss Deane; the first ball she stopped; the second she tried to, and gave what might have been a catch to sally mid-on.

The umpire rightly shook her head as the ball came off the ground. The next ball was hit for a cracking four; the next was stopped, and the last was pulled round to fine leg for four, and so Australia drew level.

The last over was a maiden, and so a grand day's cricket came to an end.

Australia continued batting in the morning and, mostly because of a very good stand between Miss George and Miss Antonio, the score was taken to 255, and so they had to follow on, being 151 runs behind. During the morning we heard that K. Smith, the Australians' brilliant all-rounder, was in hospital with appendicitis. Later we heard that the operation had been successful.

Norham (227 and 225 for four wickets), lost to Lancashire (230 for six wickets, dec.) on first innings at Manchester.

Essex (301 and 266 for seven wickets, dec.) beat Norths (288 and 108) by 171 runs at Souths. Gloucestershire (434 and 182) lost to Kent (290 and 219) for two wickets, by eight wickets at Dover.

TWO DOUBLE CENTURIES BATSMAN INJURED AFTER SCORING 238 RUNS

London, Aug. 20. An exceptionally smart victory by eight wickets by Kent over Gloucestershire at Dover was a feature of the County Cricket Championship matches brought to a close to-day. Kent won after their opponents had rattled up the huge score of 434 runs in their first innings, during which Parker scored 210.

The reply made by Kent, who made 390, was more than Gloucestershire could cope with when the home side saw their second innings total reach only 182 runs. Walter Hammond, contributed 52 and completed his 3,000 for the season but with the season so well advanced it is unlikely that he will overtake his previous best (3,323 runs).

Kent lost only two wickets in scoring 219. Woolley with 100 in the first innings and Ames with 70 in the second made victory possible for their side.

With another victory to their credit Yorkshire are now favoured for the title but Middlesex are close behind and a slip on the part of the northerners in any of their last three matches may mean the difference between winning and losing the title.

Yorkshire's match winning bowler, Hedley Verity, gave them a win by 85 runs against Glamorgan by taking five for 70 and five for 71. Mitchell ably assisted with a contribution of 105 runs.

Worthington, who was an abject failure in the Test matches in Australia, proved that his loss of form was only temporary and helped himself to 338 runs for Derbyshire against Sussex when he had to retire hurt. He enabled Derbyshire to win by nine wickets with a first innings total of 485 runs for eight declared.

Copson was in his best form and captured eight of the Sussex wickets in the first innings for 64 runs, dismissing the side for 219, of which James Langridge scored 91. John Langridge topped the century mark in the second innings with 123 of a total of 311.

Results and leading performances follow:

COUNTY CHAMPIONSHIP

The Jockey Club And Two-Year-Olds

Naming Month After First Win

Sir Leonard Brassey, senior steward of the Jockey Club, introduced resolutions for the alteration of Rules of Racing Nos. 65, 73, and 117 at the meeting of the Club held at Newmarket recently.

These resolutions had the approval of the Jockey Club.

The rules refer respectively to the naming of two-year-olds, to entries for handicaps and forfeits in weight-for-age races, and to the exchange value of foreign and Dominion races.

Lord Harewood gave notice that he would move an amendment to Sir Laurence Phillips proposed alteration to Rule 65—to read:

"That no horse shall run unnamed for more than one calendar month after he has won his first race."

ENGLISH CRICKET TEAM IN BERLIN

GERMAN SPORTS LEADER TO SPONSOR GAME

Berlin, Aug. 11. The visit of the "Gentlemen of Worcestershire" cricketers to Berlin has been pronounced a complete success and has done much to arouse German interest in the game.

The visitors played altogether three matches against German eleven, selected from the three leading cricket clubs in Berlin, and they won all three with ease.

At a tea party given yesterday afternoon at the Olympic Stadium in honour of the English guests, the German sports leader, Dr. Diehm, stated he believed cricket had a future in Germany as it was a summer game well suited for football and hockey players.

To give cricket a chance to become popular in Germany it would be necessary to curtail the Continental football season which would be bound to meet with a good deal of opposition at first. Nevertheless he intended to continue in coming years to invite English cricket eleven to play exhibition matches in Germany, just as had been done in the case of the Canadian ice hockey teams. German schoolboys visiting England on the exchange system would learn how to use the bat and if they found pleasure in it they would return as protagonists of the game in Germany.

The 55-year-old Major Jewell, playing for the English eleven, knocked up 140 runs in one of the games, thereby establishing a new record for Berlin.

There is still a possibility of the England-Australia Tests in this country next season being extended to five days instead of four.

Over 50 per cent. of Tests in England are left drawn and, unless the weather takes a hand, it is always odds on the first four games being unfinished in four days. More often than not both sides have this firmly in mind from the first over.

There is a report here that Woodfull's outbursts on the utility of four-day tests and what he calls "the inhuman custom of playing from 11 to 6.30" on three of the four days is being seriously considered at Lord's.

Even so late in the day there is a serious movement afoot to allot five days to each of the first four Tests.

HAMMOND MAY SET UP NEW RECORD

British Successes At Athletic Meeting

(From A Special Correspondent)

London, Aug. 6. It was a real sporting bank holiday. County cricket matches attracted a total 100,000 spectators, over 80,000 were present at the International Athletic Meeting at the White City, and race meetings at Sandown Park, Brighton, Derby and Ripon all reported attendances above the average.

Cheetah Racing For London

London, July 20. What must surely have been the first cheetah racing trials ever staged in this country were put on at the White City as an experimental effort.

After the usual greyhound racing had ended, a piece of meat was attached to the dummy hare and instead of the usual trapbox the cheetahs were released from specially made cages.

Unfortunately for the experiment, the majority of the big cats did not seem very interested in the hare or the meat. They just ambled along in the usual cat trot, but one or two once they had secured the meat showed amazing bursts of speed.

The cheetah is said to be the fastest thing on four legs but it tires very quickly.

They are principally used for hunting deer and antelope, and packs of cheetahs are kept for the purpose by Indian princes.

The animals which were used in the White City experiment had been undergoing serious training for track racing for the past year at private kennels in Surrey, but it rather looks as if a great deal more intensive training will have to be undertaken before the sport can be regarded as a practical proposition. The promoters intend to continue with their experiment, however.

FAMOUS AUSTRALIAN RUGBY PLAYER

Reaches England on Four Year Contract

Vic Hey, one of the most famous Rugby League players in Australia, who has accepted a four years' contract with Leeds, arrived at Southampton last month in the liner Moreton Bay in readiness for the coming season.

Aged 24, he weighs 13st. 10lb. and stands 5ft. 9in.

He is a player of all-round ability, and has been taking part in senior Rugby football in Australia for the past four years.

He was in the Australian touring side which came to England in 1933, and the following year toured New Zealand with the Western Suburbs (Sydney) side.

He plays five-eighths, and in that position should be a considerable asset to the Leeds side.

He comes of a Yorkshire family, for his father, Mr. Joseph Hey, who went to Australia 32 years ago, was born in Dewsbury, where he was well known as an athlete.

There are two things exciting the cricket world. The first is whether the country championship is coming south after a long sojourn in the north, and the second is whether Hammond will break the record aggregate.

Lancashire's defeat of Yorkshire, the first time in five years, has enabled Middlesex to take the top position at the time of writing and on current form there is nothing about the southern county's remaining matches to suggest that they will lose it.

Writing without the book of records beside me, I believe this will be the first time Middlesex have won the championship since 1919. So far as I can remember, Hendren will be the only player to have taken part in both seasons. And what a part. This week he has followed up his 187 against Sussex with 138 against Somerset.

They were a good side that 1919 eleven. I can picture them in my mind now, with tall Durston bowling to live slips, and "Plum," now Sir Pelham Warner, in his bright harlequin cap, leaving the field to save runs. Herne and Hendren dashing along the boundary, and then H. L. Dales and Lee, with his exaggerated stop, opening the innings.

The Yorkshire men may not agree, but it won't be a bad thing for cricket if the title does come south this year.

HOPES OF HAMMOND

It is now taken for granted that Hammond will exceed the 3,000 mark before the season ends. Since I wrote last week, he has scored nearly 300 runs and interest is now centred in whether he will beat Tom Hayward's record aggregate of 3,518.

It was 31 years ago when Hayward, idol of Oval crowds, scored this fine aggregate, and the nearest approach to it is the 3,352 scored by Frank Woolley in 1928. Last August Hammond scored 1,300 runs. Will he do it again this year? An analysis of the records of Hayward and Hammond shows that the modern player has accomplished just about as much as the pre-war star. Hammond was not so far from breaking the aggregate record in 1933 when he finished the season with a total of 3,323 runs.

Nobody has yet beaten Jack Hobbs's total of 16 centuries in 1925, but both Hayward and Hammond have reached the 100, 13 times in a season.

Both Hayward and Hammond have scored 1,000 runs in May. In 1900 Hayward obtained 1,074, and when Hammond got his 1,000 in the opening month of the 1933 season, his total was 1,038.

He has, however, achieved a feat which concluded in making 1,000 runs in August.

Hammond is well ahead of Hayward's total of 101 centuries, although he has still made fewer in England than Hayward made in this country. Hayward made only four on tour, while Hammond has made 22 away from home.

FAGG RECOVERING

Better news is available of Fagg, the Kent cricketer who had rheumatic fever while with M.C.C. in Australia last winter.

He is up and about, is allowed to climb stairs, and to drive a car. His recovery has been slow, but it has not been interrupted. If it continues equally satisfactorily, there are reasonable hopes of his playing cricket again next summer.

With Ashdown gone, and Woolley nearing retirement, Kent will sorely need Fagg's sound opening batsmanship.

My Warning to Farr

By Jack PetersenTommy Farr is in America and the best of luck to him.

Whatever were the rights and wrongs in the dispute between managers and promoters over Schmeling's claim to a fight with Farr I have held all along that Farr himself was free to choose his opponent. And now the courts have upheld that view.

With two men calling themselves world champions, Farr, the rightful champion, has chosen what looks like the toughest fight. Certainly it is the one that will bring him the more cash and glory.

But whether he wins or loses the contest with Joe Louis, Tommy is morally bound to give Schmeling a fight. That fight ought to take place before the end of the season in this country, and I fervently hope and believe that it will.

Neither Joe Louis nor Tommy Farr will be the undisputed champion of the world until one or the other has beaten Schmeling. The German was given a raw deal in New York.
Braddock's failure to appear in the ring after signing a binding agreement to fight gave Schmeling a clear legal right to claim the championship.

"FOREIGN" FIGHT

UNPOPULAR IN U.S.

His experience in England was equally unfortunate for him, but the legal position was different, as the court ruling has shown. He was not barred because of his nationality or his political creed as in New York.

The case was simply that Farr preferred to fight Louis first, thereby taking what seems to me a much bigger chance. But a great fighter like Schmeling cannot be put on the shelf and forgotten.

There is one very good reason why Farr, if he beats Louis, and gives Schmeling the promised fight, should return to this country to do the job.
It is that a fight between two "foreigners" for the heavy-weight championship would be unpopular in America and, possibly, would not be permitted.

A similar position arose in this country at the beginning of the season, when it was announced that Max Baer was getting ready to come here. The only opponent then in sight for Max was Walter Neusel, and it was pretty well agreed that such a contest was barred by the rule which forbids a contest between two foreigners as the main item of a programme.

That was less than six months ago, but what a lot of changes have taken place since then. Tommy Farr had only just been heard of in a moderately big way, and many wise and knowing ones were backing Ben Ford to beat him.

THE CRITICS WERE WRONG

But Tommy Farr went on to lay out Ford, Baer, and Neusel in a neat row, and to challenge for the world championship.

May I now claim the credit for seeing this coming? Immediately after the defeat of Baer I said that Farr was the likeliest candidate for the world championship that Britain had produced for many years.

I pointed to his speed, his cunning, his determination, and his wonderful straight left, which stopped and battered Baer and was going to repeat the dose with Neusel.

Farr is now the best heavy-weight boxer in commission. There is no boxer in America worthy to lick his boots. He is as beautiful to watch as Carpenter was.

If Tommy does that he will render a great service to the Ring. It was on February 3, 1937, two days after the scrap which ended my ring career, that I was sufficiently recovered to open one eye and read this: "With Petersen out of the way British opposition to the German has been practically exhausted."

That was written by one of our foremost boxing critics. "The German" was Neusel. Think of Neusel now, and you will realise the pendulum has swung the pendulum has made in less than six months.

The same critic confidently looked for a fight between Baer and Neusel because no British fighter was in sight. Ford was mentioned, and Harvey and Doyle, but not Farr.
When Max Baer did come over there was no talk of his meeting Neusel.
Farr had come on the scene. Baer's legal troubles must have been a nuisance to him.

He was in a jam over an alleged contract for him to fight Bob Pastor, one of America's best white heavyweights.

Farr had better look out for this Pastor. Attempts will be made to match Tommy with him, and I hope Tommy is strong enough to resist them.

Duty must come first, and it is Farr's first duty to return to his country as soon as possible after the fight with Louis and give Schmeling the fight to which the German is clearly entitled.

No one can blame Tommy if he falls for the arguments of American managers and producers, and decides to stay over there until he has made as much money as a Hollywood star.

But I must remind him that a first-class boxer in this country who leads a decent life, and runs his business properly, can earn enough in a few years to retire on without having to worry about the lawyers, managers, gangsters, and chisellers who complicate the life of everybody in America who makes money quickly.

What Max Baer, for example, suffered from the writ-servers was nothing to what the great Jack Dempsey had to endure.

Dempsey never complained about it. He told nobody about his sleepless nights, his months of mental agony. After all, Tommy also had suffered, as the chisellers had been after him also.

And that sort of thing, I am here to warn Tommy Farr, is what he will be up against from the moment he lands in America next Tuesday or Wednesday.

Open In Training

New York, Aug. 19.
Tommy Farr, the British and Empire heavyweight boxing champion, who will meet Joe Louis for the world's title on August 26, had his cheek cut open to-day while training in his camp at New Jersey.

His sparring partner, Joe Wagner, swung a perfect hook which made a deep cut in the British champion's right cheek. Farr will have to lay off training until after Friday.

RAID ON A STORE

LORRY AND CARGO JUNK
USED TO REMOVE GOODS

The hearing of the case in which two men are charged with receiving over $2,000 worth of groceries, stolen from the William's Store, No. 41 Des Voeux Road Central, on June 26 last, was resumed at the Central Magistrate's yesterday afternoon, after a series of adjournments. Defendants were Wong Kat-shun, alias Wong Sau-san, aged 35, accountant, and Wong Tak-yuen, aged 30, clerk, who were both represented by Mr. Hin-ching Lo. The case was heard before Mr. E. Keen.

Chief Detective Inspector J. Murphy, assisted by Detective-Sergeant T. Cashman, prosecuted.

Chu Yung-kan, a lorry cleaner, stated that he was waiting in his lorry, together with his master, the driver, for hire at Wing Lok Street about 5 a.m. on June 26, when a stranger approached and hired the lorry, saying he wanted to transport goods in it. The lorry drove to the William's Store. The shop door was closed, but the stranger pushed it open, and witness saw a number of men inside. These men carried boxes of provisions to the lorry, which then drove to the Taping junk wharf, where witness was paid $1 as hire. He could not identify either of the defendants.

Fung Sau, mistress of cargo junk
No. 1420V, said that a long time after down on June 26, a call was made to her junk, and she was asked to take a number of cases on board. Coolies loaded the junk, and a man boarded it, a steam launch was engaged, and the junk was towed to Mongkok where the goods were unloaded on to a motor lorry. Witness got on board the lorry and was taken to Cheungchawan Road, where she was paid $8.20 as hire money by first accused.
After the goods were removed from

PREPARING
CRICKETERS MEET
NEW L.B.W. LAW

The new M.C.C. L.B.W. rule, adoption of which was inevitable but over which some discussion had been expected, was accepted without a single comment at the annual meeting of the Hongkong Cricket League yesterday.

Mr. H. R. B. Hancock, President, was in the Chair, with the following representatives.—Messrs. H. Owen-Hughes and A. W. Hayward (Hongkong), A. R. Mina (Indian), P. C.
Goodwin (Kowloon), Lieutenant Barron (Army), Lieutenant H. W. E. d'Arcy-Evans (Navy), E. Zimmerman and D. Hung (Craigengower), H. E.
Strange (Civil Service), E. A. R.
Alves (Recreio), G. Hong-Choy (University), T. R. Hunter (Police) and A. H. Madar, secretary and treasurer.

Mr. Hancock announced that the League could not give the usual donations to the Schools because of illnesses.

Officers elected:

Mr. H. R. B. Hancock, President;
Mr. A. W. Hayward, Vice-President;
Mr. A. H. Madar, Secretary.

Regarding the new L.B.W. rule, Mr.
Hancock said that as it was already law it would have to be adopted.

Eight entries were received for the first division and nine for the Second, as follows: First.—Indian Recreation Club, Hongkong Cricket Club, Kowloon Cricket Club, Craigengower Cricket Club, Navy, Army, Civil Service, and Recreio. The same clubs will enter the second division, the Army running two teams.

Mr. Hayward suggested that the arranging of fixtures be postponed.
The main event, the Interport with Shanghai and possibly Malaya, he said, might not materialise, and in the meantime he proposed that Club representatives send to the secretary a list of the days on which they could play League or Friendly matches.
The League committee could prepare blank tables and a Fixture Committee could be formed.

Mr. Hancock suggested that Club secretaries state whether they were willing to play on Sunday.

Mr. d'Arcy-Evans suggested that the interval between innings should be strictly limited to the seven minutes allowed, and that tea should be restricted. This was agreed to.

the lorry, witness saw them being carried into a carpenter's shop on first defendant's instructions.

Cubicle Rented

Leung Man-po, master of the Fu
On furniture shop, No. 30 Cheungshawan Road, who was originally charged together with defendants in connection with receiving the goods, but who was later discharged as no evidence was offered against him, said that on June 25 first defendant, whom he knew, came to him and asked witness to rent him a cubicle in his shop. First accused told witness that he wanted the cubicle to store goods in, and witness initially rented the cubicle to him.

Witness did not see the goods taken inside the cubicle the next morning, as he was still asleep, but on getting up, he saw the goods had already been shifted in, and first accused was inside the cubicle, and witness heard the sound of things being moved about inside. When first defendant came out, he locked the cubicle door behind him.

Witness did not see second defendant until June 26, when he went into the cubicle. On the evening of June 27, witness saw a man with first accused and this man carried out some of the goods, placed them on a tricycle, and rode away. Later, other men came and took away more goods, which had been left outside the cubicle door. Witness knew both accused, as they were employed in the King Fat Yuen Cafe, which was the house adjacent to witness's shop.

Replying to Mr. Lo's suggestion that it was another man, whom first accused brought to the shop, that asked for the renting of the cubicle, witness said no person came except first accused himself. No stranger came to rent the cubicle at any time, he added.

After further evidence by Chan Nui, wife of Leung, and an apprentice carpenter in the shop, who both testified to having seen the goods taken into the cubicle, the hearing was adjourned until 2.30 p.m. next Wednesday.

FOOTBALL POOLS TEST CASE

ARE THEY LOTTERIES?

An important test case to decide whether football cards constitute a lottery was opened recently before Sheriff Brown at Hamilton, Lanarkshire.

Thomas Heffernan, a Lanarkshire commission agent, and his son, Daniel Heffernan, were charged with having in their possession 1,200 tickets or chances in a lottery, namely the pool card, in which money prizes were offered for tickets on which were printed three football teams, referred to by numbers, showing the best score of goals in the aggregate in matches to be played on February 20.

They were also charged with distributing such tickets and with having in their possession lists of prize-winners relating to a lottery.

USE OF PREMISES

Thomas Heffernan was also charged with using his premises for purposes connected with a lottery.

The defence was that football pool cards did not constitute a lottery.

Inspector James Christie stated that he searched the Heffernans' house and found pool cards which stated that the first prize was £15, second £10 and third £5. There were three numbers on the cards representing teams which were to play on February 20. The purchaser of the card could, however, select his own three teams if he wished.

When charged, Thomas Heffernan replied, "I understood the tickets were quite legal as I have taken legal advice on the matter. I understood that so long as the purchaser had option of choosing his own teams it was lawful."

Thomas Heffernan, giving evidence, said he accepted full responsibility for the scheme. He distributed pool cards to various agents, who handed them to clients. The agents were instructed to sell them on a strictly credit basis.

Mr. G. R. Thomson—What proportion of your clients chose their own teams?

Heffernan—About 70 to 75 per cent. The majority of my clients prefer to depend upon their own judgment.

SOLICITOR'S ADVICE

Heffernan added that his son kept a book showing the amount of money taken from the sale of cards. Before 1928 he had received a sample of a pool card which he gave to the solicitor, who advised him that this card was illegal. He then obtained the present card. The difference was that the illegal card did not bear an intimation that the purchaser could select his own team.

Heffernan was cross-examined on the question of skill in connection with the choice of teams.

The Fiscal pointed out to him that a prize was awarded for choosing three teams which scored five goals each on any one Saturday, and asked if it was not a question of chance in choosing three such teams.

Heffernan replied that there were men who thought they knew better than others and could choose teams which could score a certain number of goals.

The Fiscal—What happens if the centre-forward makes a mistake and scores more than five goals?

The Fiscal said—Assuming you had chosen a team to score five goals and just at the last minute the centre-forward scored a sixth, wouldn't you say, "What luck," with a few adjectives in between?

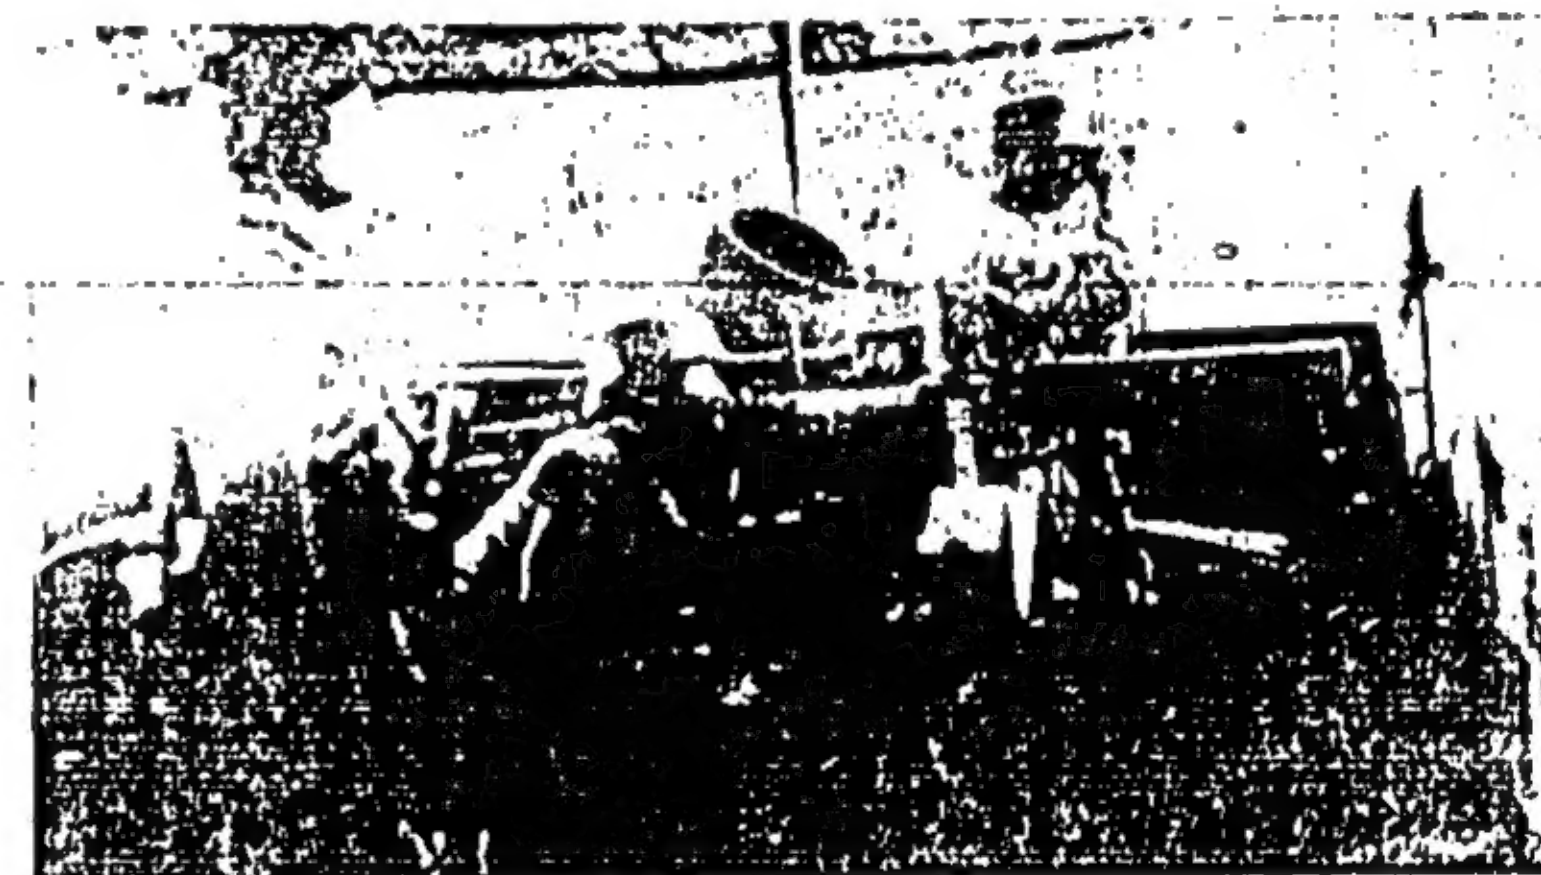

The hearing was adjourned.

The above picture was taken this week in the war zone in Shanghai showing three Chinese soldiers ready to attack with their machine-gun well protected by sandbags. The picture also reveals that the Chinese troops are well equipped in every way for modern warfare.

NANKING ROAD AFTER LAST WEEK'S TRAGIC BOMBING

Much havoc was created and many lives lost by bombs from Chinese planes which dropped in Nanking Road last Saturday. Our picture shows the entrance to the Cathay Hotel on the left, with that of the Palace Hotel immediately opposite. In the lounge of the latter establishment a foreigner was instantly killed when he was flattened against the wall by the force of the explosions. (Photo by Mrs. Rosario, of Shanghai).

New Factory Legislation

Draft Of Hongkong Ordinance

The Gazette contains the draft of an Ordinance to amend the law relating to factories and workshops and to the employment of women, young persons and children in certain industries.

The object of this Bill is to transfer the office of Protector of Labour from the Secretary for Chinese Affairs to the Chairman of the Urban Council and to vest the control of factories, workshops and the employment of women, young persons and children in certain industries in the Urban Council.

Upon the enactment of the Factories and Workshops Ordinance, 1932, it was considered desirable that the powers of the Protector of Labour under that Ordinance should be exercised by the Secretary for Chinese Affairs with the assistance of qualified inspectors of labour until the persons and industries affected should become accustomed to a measure of regulation. With the passage of years the reasons for this arrangement have disappeared, and it is now proposed to effect the transfer above-mentioned.

This Bill is based upon the provisions of Ordinance No. 27 of 1932, which, with the Factories and Workshops Amendment Ordinance, 1936, it repeals. In this Bill, clause 5 of which gives the necessary powers of regulation to the Urban Council, and clause 7 a power of inspection to a select committee of that Council, the opportunity has been taken to effect certain amendments which experience has shown to be necessary and to revise and consolidate, in the form of by-laws, the regulations made under Ordinance No. 27 of 1932 and set out in the Schedule to that Ordinance and Government Notifications Nos. 660 of 1933 and 784 of 1936, published in the Government Gazette of 6th October, 1933 and 20th September, 1936, respectively.

By fixing 14 years as the minimum age for employment in industrial undertakings (Clause 2 (1) of the Bill) and by-law 5 in the Schedule (thereto) and increasing the period during which women and young persons may not be employed during the night in ordinary circumstances to 11 hours (by-law 8 in the Schedule), effect is given more fully to the International Labour Conventions fixing the minimum age for admission of children to industrial employment and concerning the night work of women and young persons employed in industry which were adopted at Washington on 28th

ANGLO-ITALIAN RELATIONS

NOW VERY MUCH EASIER

Palermo, Sicily, Aug. 20. Bringing his visit here to a climax to-day, Sir Mussolini told 50,000 troops that Italy wants to pursue "a concrete policy of peace, but she will not tolerate Bolshevism in the Mediterranean."

It is announced that the Anglo-Italian tension has been eased and that Italy's relations with Britain have been "clarified."—United Press.

HANKOW FLOOD MENACE GRAVE DISASTER FEARED

Hankow, Aug. 21. Hankow, Hanyang and Wuchang and the surrounding vicinity are being threatened by another flood as the river level rose to 49 feet to-day which is only four feet from the tops of the flood-prevention walls.

The situation is regarded as very serious and if the river continues to rise and adequate prevention is not forthcoming it is feared that another disaster similar to the one in 1933 will be repeated.

The Changkung dyke is still intact but the smaller dykes are in a very precarious situation. One thousand coolies have been rushed to reinforce the weaker embankments along the river.

The bund area from the Customs House to the Japanese Concession in Hankow is now under one foot of water.—Central News.

PEAK BURGLARY

Captain A. K. Dibley, of No. 103 The Peak, reported to the police that sometime between 11 p.m. on the 19th and 6 a.m. on the 20th, somebody entered his house and stole silverware worth £10 and $63 in money.

November, 1910, and communicated by the Secretary of State in his circular despatch of 13th August, 1921. The Conventions have in actual practice been adhered to by employers of labour in the Colony for some time, with the possible exception of the provisions regarding night work.

War Risk Rates Increased

Hongkong Included in Ports

London, Aug. 19. Lloyds underwriters, marine and assurance companies are giving forty-eight hours' notice that they have decided not to insure goods on shore either before loading or after discharge at Shanghai and other Chinese ports.

Rates of insurance against war risk in the Mediterranean have been increased. The rates for vessels passing the Straits of Gibraltar and proceeding east of 12 degrees longitude, i.e., in a line from Civitavecchia to Tripoli are as follows: For oil in tankers, 20s. per cent.; for ordinary cargo by tramp steamers, 10s. per cent. Both were previously 5s. per cent. Rates for passenger liners are unchanged at 5s. per cent.

If a vessel from the east does not cross the above line, the rate for passenger liners will be 1s. 3d., for ordinary tramp steamers 2s. 6d. and for tankers 5s., compared previously with sixpence.—Reuter.

The Propaganda Minister has given an assurance to the Foreign Press Association that a high official will be placed over the German press in order to prevent the public from generalising attacks on foreign correspondents.—Reuter Bulletin.

An unconfirmable story was current in the Colony last evening that a Japanese passenger, on a bus left a suitcase, containing a number of papers in Japanese, and alleged to relate to military movements at Hankow and Shanghai, on the seat.

It was later claimed by the passenger, who appeared most agitated.
